6,000,000 Are Blind.
Happy Are the Banks.
The Nature of Woman.
War, Famine, Stocks, Etc.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE American Federation of Labor, ably led by President Green, will join the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness in a national campaign of prevention.

There are in the world at least 6,000,000 totally blind. To know how great is the affliction, stop reading for a moment, close your eyes, and ask yourself what life would be worth if you could never open them.

IGNORANCE increases blindness and diseases born of vice, and superstition, increases it. In Egypt, today, you may see infants with flies attacking their eyes, the mothers afraid to hurt the flies, because it is a sin. Your grandmother's spirit might live in one of the flies. That superstition alone has caused thousands of Egyptian children to lose their sight.

NATIONAL CITY BANK stock went up $400 a share last week, rising $100 in one day. The Hanover National Bank prepares to give stockholders a stock dividend of 100 per cent. Mr. Baker's First National Bank pays 100 per cent cash dividend. All three in New York City.

THIS real Thanksgiving period for bank stock owners is not surprising. Borrowers pay from 7 to 9 per cent interest. One day's dealings, in these 5,000,000 share days, amounts to $6,000,000,000.

Seven per cent on that would amount to $420,000,000 in a year. And call money interest is only part of banking profits.

At present interest rates, with a little time, the banks would have all the money.

WHO can explain the nature of woman, or the terrible intensity of jealousy? The Bible and Shakespeare tried, but it cannot be done. Robert E. Evans, Denver policeman, was in love with Faie King, trained nurse, told her so, then married someone else.

She waited five years, and when he was brought to the hospital, wounded in a fight with bootleggers, she killed him, as he lay sleeping, in the early morning, and shot herself.

HER farewell note said "You belong to me. I have waited five years for this chance and it came." She asked that she might be buried near him.

Explain all that if you can. If she recovers, as she may, will a jury convict her or say with the Bible that jealousy hath a most vehement flame, and was too much for her?

LORD CECIL advocates "absolute equality in tons and guns, in the navies of Britain and the United States."

This is quite a concession by the British. They find that word "equality" unpalatable.

WHY not stick to the plan originated by Britain, in the old "we've got the men, we've got the ships, we've got the money, too."

WITH men, ships and money, Britain ruled the waves and ruled the roost.

IT'S NOT convenient for Britain to spend the money at present. But is that any reason why we should not spend it? Britain did not consult us about her navy or its size, in the good old days. She simply went ahead. And she had the right idea.

FRANCE announces that her standing army will be reduced to 598,000 men in 1930. Painleve, minister of war, says France must have a big army until war among the states of Europe becomes impossible, as is war, now, among the United States.

The size of the French army is the business of France, not ours. When and if the next war starts masses of armed men may be as useless as were battle fleets in the last war.

Certainly deadly gases would make it necessary for troops to operate under ground.

The economic loss in keeping more than half a million young men constantly idle in France, fed and clothed by the workers, and delayed in beginning life for themselves, is incalculable.

MARSHAL FENG YU-HSING, China's minister of war, says $20,000,000 will not begin to solve the famine problem. His four provinces alone need at least $48,000,000, only $1.50 a month each to feed the starving.

HUNGRY Chinese have ceased selling their children, because no one buys them. The children are abandoned on the roadside, whoever will may take them—or they starve.

It was worse in Rome, when it was legal to expose unwanted infants on the public square, to be taken by anybody, or eaten by stray dogs.

THAT disagreeable custom, according to Lecky, caused early Christians, ingeniously, and kind heartedly, to invent their theory about infants not baptized, going to hell, or a place like it. The mothers were afraid not to have children baptized, and after baptism, dared not expose them. Civilizing the human race has not been an easy job, and it's a process still unfinished.

RUSSIA is enjoying a new war scare. Earnest communists believe that "capitalist nations" are in a conspiracy to destroy Russia, and Sovietism. Russia worries about increasing friendliness between Britain and Japan, suspecting a plot to "encircle" Russia.

CAPITALISM is too intelligent to plan Bolshevism's destruction. To attempt that would, temporarily, keep Communism alive. The remedy for Communism IS WEALTH.

Make Communism rich, and Communism will say "I had no idea there was so much money, so much comfort. I must revise my views."

"MONARCHIES are destroyed by poverty, republics (and Communism) by wealth."

Rich Socialists, as Victor Berger can tell you, can be counted

GAS FATAL TO ACTOR, BROTHER TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Fumes from a lighted gas stove today claimed the life of Rudolph Yacobi, 20, Argentine acrobat, while his brother, Americo, 18, narrowly escaped a similar fate in their room in the Pershing Hotel, 230 Collins avenue.

The two brothers, appearing with other members of the family, this week in the Sheridan Square Theater, were found unconscious by Albert and Ector St. Leon, brothers, also acrobats, appearing at the Harris Theater, who went to call.

The rescue team of a mine safety appliance company in Homewood responded to summons by police and resuscitated the younger brother, but the other was dead. Americo was removed to Pittsburgh Hospital where it was said he would recover.

In an adjoining room of the hotel was Mrs. Mary Yacobi, 60, mother of the youths, and in another room, nearby were two other brothers, Edward and Alfred, unaware of the fate of the two youths until told by police.

A fifth brother, Robert, and a sister, Nellie Yacobi, were quartered at another hotel. They gave their address as 424 East street, Long Beach, N. Y.

Police said gas stoves had been put in use while repairs were being made to a steam heating system.

HOOVER SEES SON MADE 'SHELL-BACK'

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.
International News Service.

ABOARD U. S. S. MARYLAND (Via Arlington, Va., Radio Station), Nov. 30.—President-elect Hoover, elated over the success of his Central American visits, today put the finishing touches on the speech he will deliver tomorrow when he lands at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

He was interrupted by the "Equatorial Ceremonies," which are a tradition of the sea when a ship crosses the imaginary line dividing the northern and southern hemispheres.

TRIP DIDN'T COUNT

Allan Hoover, son of the President-elect, was among the 800 "Pollywogs," or persons crossing the equator for the first time, to be initiated by the "Shell-Backs," veterans of previous cruises. Allan has crossed the equator once before, but aboard a merchantman which, the "Shell-Backs" rule, does not count.

The Maryland crossed the equator just before noon. Hoover, who had been "invited" to witness the ceremonies, was escorted to the "Royal Throne" above the forward gun turret. He was much amused to be introduced to "King Neptune," whose whiskers were made from shredded rope.

The "King," in private life, is Capt. Tesar, of Washington, D. C., chief turret captain.

"MERMAIDS" THERE

The "King's subjects" proved a motley crew in comic opera attire consisting of silk hats, pajamas, canes, gloves, white duck trousers and other odds and ends. Mingling with them were "pirates" and bare-footed, shirtless sailors along with "mermaids." The ship's band played a funeral dirge for the benefit of the "Pollywog" victims.

This ceremony consists of initiating the persons who have never before crossed the equator, or the "Pollywogs," as they are called by sea-faring men. They are conducted under the supervision of "King Neptune"—a sailor dressed to represent the "Old Gentleman of the Sea"—who appears with crown, whiskers and trident to see that the "Pollywogs" are properly "ducked" in the tank on the quarter deck.

Hoover has received an invitation to stop over at Arica, Chile, but has not yet made a decision.

KING IS IMPROVING; NOT OUT OF DANGER

LONDON, Nov. 30. — (AP.) — King George's condition showed some improvement today, but it was regarded that he was by no means out of danger.

An official bulletin issued by his physicians early this afternoon said:

"The inflammation of the lung and pleura shows some improvement. The temperature is slightly lower. The time of possible exacerbation of the infection, it must be noted, has not yet passed, and in any case progress must be slow."

WALES SAILS SUNDAY

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika, Nov. 30 —(AP.)—The Prince of Wales, who is waiting for the swift cruiser, Enterprise, to arrive here, made a trip to Zanzibar today on the government steamer, Azania.

He will return to Dar-Es-Salaam tomorrow, the Enterprise being expected here either tomorrow night or Sunday. It was reported that the Prince intended to embark immediately and start for home.

It was said in an authoritative quarter today that the Duke of Gloucester would continue his tour.

CHRIS CAGLE

Chris Cagle, star halfback of the Army eleven, is ready to battle Pop Warner's Stanford University team at the Yankee Stadium, New York, tomorrow in the game that replaces the annual Army-Navy classic.

STANFORD EXPECTS VICTORY OVER ARMY

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—"Pop" Warner, veteran coach of the Leland Stanford eleven that has crossed the continent to test Army's might, looked upon a drizzling rain today with anything but misgivings for the morrow.

Quartered at the luxurious Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, the cagey veteran and his warriors saw in the dripping skies an omen of victory. The only game Stanford has played on a wet field in two years was a decisive victory last season over Washington. The Cardinals handled the ball perfectly that day without a single fumble being chalked against them.

While the weather prospects for tomorrow indicated more rain and a wet field, the Californians planned to rest throughout the day. No practice was scheduled and the team will remain at the country club on the outskirts of the city until time to start for the intersectional classic in the Yankee Stadium, where close to 80,000 persons are expected to be on hand.

The entire squad worked out yesterday at the country club before coming into New York to see the Beavers of Oregon State whip New York University. After the game the Cardinals took the field in the near darkness and passed the ball for half an hour. With the exception of a few sore throats, the squad is in perfect condition after the long train ride from Palo Alto.

SLOAN SEES '29 AS RECORD AUTO YEAR

By JAMES I. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, which has established a high record for profits that no other industrial concern has ever approached in peacetime, predicted in an exclusive interview with the writer that "the automotive industry in 1929 will experience the biggest year it has ever had."

"What is the prospect for business?" he was asked. "Do you see anything ahead that will interfere with the prosperity that exists in America today?"

"I do not see any influence tending to reduce the present trend of industrial activity," he replied. "So far as the automotive industry is concerned—and it is a very important factor in the prosperity—of the country—I believe 1929 will be the biggest year we have ever had."

KEEN EXECUTIVE

Mr. Sloan was seated in his sumptuous office on the twenty-fourth floor of General Motors Building overlooking Central Park. Here this tall, slender, keen-minded executive of 53, directs the greatest business organization that has ever been formed, exceeding that of Henry Ford, and of the United States Steel Corporation. The records show that General Motors in the first nine months of this year earned a net profit $240,534,613. These earnings for the first nine months not only exceeded the total for any like period in the corporation's history, but they were greater than ever shown for a full year in peacetime.

"What will be the total volume of business of General Motors for 1928?" Mr. Sloan was asked.

"Between one and one-half and one and three-quarters billion dollars—that is, between $1,500,000,000 and $1,750,000,000," he replied.

Of that staggering total the export business will aggregate approximately between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

This tremendous volume of business will "exceed substantially" any previous records made by the corporation, he said.

Mr. Sloan places the automotive

FEUD WITH FATHER OVER REMARRIAGE COSTS FORTUNE

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(INS.)—A father-and-son feud which lasted for over 10 years was revealed today when the will of Thomas Fortune Ryan, retired capitalist who died last week, was filed for probate.

The will, which disposes of an estate said to be valued at more than $200,000,000, cut off a son, Allan A., with only a set of white pearl studs.

Other members of the family and faithful servants are bequeathed most of the estate. Only a few bequests are made to charity because, the will explains, Ryan felt that during his life time he had contributed to many religious, charitable and educational causes.

The will of the financier and philanthropist was read to the family last Wednesday.

$500,000,000 ESTIMATE

Ryan left a fortune, which has been estimated at from $200,000,000 to $500,000,000.

Ryan made numerous charitable donations during his life time.

The will, which was completely redrawn about a year ago, makes generous provision for all of Ryan's employes.

The elder Ryan remained on good terms with the first Mrs. Allan Ryan and her four children. They were at his bedside when he died and attended the funeral.

Allan A. Ryan is two days out of New York on the liner Majestic en route home from Europe.

U. S. WILL PUSH RUM TRIAL CASES

Federal prosecution of alleged gigantic liquor conspiracies here is not to suffer diminution in force, despite the court-directed acquittal of 46 North Side defendants Wednesday. This determination was evident today both with Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington and at the office of the United States district attorney. Representatives of both offices will meet to outline action, it was indicated.

Conceding loss of the first round in the battle, intention was expressed to proceed with prosecution of the South Side and "Strip" conspiracy cases, involving 120 other defendants.

NOT "STOPPED"

"Although decision as to the form of future prosecution rests with the office of the Federal District Attorney," said Pennington, "it is apparent that several alternatives are still left—we are not 'stopped' by any means.

"The grand jury could be recalled and all, or most, of the defendants re-indicted on another charge than that of participation in one general conspiracy—the charge which the court ruled had not been substantiated at the trial of the 46.

"They could be re-indicted, I am certain—though, of course, this is for others to decide—in smaller groups on conspiracy charges. Or they could be re-indicted, many of them, on charges of violating the federal prohibition laws.

"Until the attorneys have passed on the question, and they most probably will do so today, I can't tell whether the South Side and "Strip" cases will be prosecuted on the indictments charging, in each case, one general conspiracy. I believe they will. But even if they are not, it seems certain that the original indictments could be quashed and the defendants re-indicted in other fashion.

"All this, of course, is predicated upon the legal information at hand at this moment. The whole situation will have to be threshed out today.

"But from the evidence introduced into the trial, I believe it apparent, as Judge R. M. Gibson pointed out, that there has been produced proof that there has been conspiracy here to violate the prohibition laws."

MUST DECIDE ON 11

Several connections of the North Side case remain to be disposed of. Of the defendants indicted, 11 entered pleas of guilty or no defense. While no indication has been forthcoming from United States District Attorney John D. Meyer, there is ground for the belief that no action will be taken against these defendants and that they will be placed in the same category as the defendants freed by order of court. Thirteen of the indicted have not been apprehended, but no special action is expected to be taken against them.

No Irregularities In Topley's Office

The report of Ernst & Ernst, which declared irregularities had been found in the offices of the Prothonotary and the Clerk of County courts, had no reference to the office of Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, it was explained today by Controller Robert G. Woodside. The Clerk of County Courts is the Prothonotary and is not connected with the Clerk of Courts.

KLINE WILL NOT ACT IN POLICE RUM CASE

Mayor Charles H. Kline plans no action in regard to policemen and other city employes accused in the North Side rum conspiracy case.

"I have not given the matter a moment's thought," he said today.

Furthermore, he regards it as his duty, "for the protection of society," to take no action against the accused men no matter what testimony has been or may be produced in Federal Court, unless they are pronounced guilty by a jury.

He does not intend to be the instrument, he said, through which life-long shame and suffering may be visited upon the wives and families of the accused policemen.

"In view," Mayor Kline was asked, "of the testimony in the liquor conspiracy trial in the United States District Court, involving policemen and other city employes in charge of corruption, bribery and violation of the liquor laws, what do you propose to do?"

PLANS NO ACTION

"These charges have been published by the newspapers," the

COUNCIL RENEWS EFFORTS TO PARE '29 BUDGET $735,000

MAILED BY AIR

RUSSELL BARLEY DAHL

Four-year-old Russell Barley Dahl, Pontiac, Mich., properly tagged and stamped, was a "package" on the inaugural flight of the Pontiac-Detroit-Kalamazoo air mail service. Addressed to Postmaster Kellogg at Detroit, he was delivered to that gentleman at the post office rather than to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Dahl, who waited at the air field.

COSTS TOP REVENUES $885,000

Council today renewed budget sessions, facing the necessity of cutting $735,000 from requested appropriations for 1929 totaling $25,844,300 to avoid increasing the present tax levy of 25 mills on land and 12.5 mills on buildings.

Estimated expenses of the various departments were submitted to Council by Mayor Charles H. Kline last Monday when $885,000 represented the excess of expenses above estimated revenues on the basis of the present tax rate.

The excess was reduced to $735,000 when H. S. Breitenstein, mayor's statistician, appeared at a meeting of the councilmanic budget committee and submitted a revised report.

That report showed estimated receipts for 1929 from miscellaneous sources totalling $6,693,000, leaving $19,151,000 to be raised by taxes.

RECEIPTS, EXPENDITURES

Total receipts for 1928, with another month to go, were estimated at $25,785,000 and total expenditures at $25,735,000. The apparent balance of $50,000 is absorbed in estimated deficits of $500,000 which would leave a probable net deficit of $450,000. The difference between that amount and the $735,000 excess of expenses above revenues represents increases in appropriation requests for 1929.

Assessed valuations on land for 1929 tax purposes were increased $20,000,000 more than last year with no increase reported for buildings. Totals for next year are $573,700,000 on land and $555,100,000 on buildings. On the basis of experience, collections will be made on 86½ per cent of the $1,128,800,000 total, or $735,630,000.

Revised budget estimates indicate a one-mill increase in the tax on land and a half mill increase on buildings, but there is every indication that Council will adjust the financial program so that the present levy will prevail in 1929.

Council's intention to pare expenditures to the bone was illustrated in requests for additional information.

BOND REPORT ASKED

Under a motion by W. Y. English, the controller's office was requested to furnish a report showing the status of all bond issues still on the books. Council wants to know the amount of bonds authorized for sale, the money received from sales, the money from sales that is encumbered by existing improvement contracts and the amount of bonds authorized but not sold.

English also called upon the Controller to report all transfers of funds during the current year from one account to another.

On motion of President James F. Malone, the Controller was asked to report any balance in the various current accounts.

KLINE WILL NOT DROP POLICE

Mayor answered, "but newspaper reports do not constitute testimony."

"If you lack faith in the newspaper reports, will you get a stenographic transcript of the court testimony?"

"I haven't given this matter a moment's thought."

"Don't you intend to do anything about it?"

"No."

"Are you not impressed by the fact that Judge Gibson said pretty plainly that while a general conspiracy against the 46 defendants in the North Side case had not been proved, and so it was necessary to direct their acquittal, the evidence disclosed that a number of them were guilty individually of the things charged?"

NOT PROVED GUILTY

"A man is innocent unless found guilty by a jury. My own experience of seven years on the bench convinced me of the truth of that saying.

"Even if I were satisfied of the guilt of the accused men I would do nothing against them until a jury had convicted them. I understand there is some possibility that the United States attorney way try these men again. It would not be seemly for me to prejudice their case by taking some action again them.

"Some of these men have families of six or seven little children. Life is short, and it behooves us not to bring any more sorrow or suffering into it than we have to.

It is out duty to protect society. It is my duty, and for the protection of society it is necessary that I should do nothing to blast the lives of the wives and little children of these men.

"I wish you would emphasize that—that I wish to protect the wives and families of these men from disgrace."

NORTHCOTT DENIES 4 KILLINGS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 30.—(INS.)—"I will fight the charges to the bitter end."

"I repudiate any and all confessions attributed to me."

His eyes flashing angrily, Gordon Stewart Northcott, 21, alleged murderer of four boys, made these dramatic declarations just before stepping off the West Coast Limited in Glendale, to be taken to the county jail in Los Angeles.

This was the first interview ever given by Northcott. Steadfastly he has refused to discuss his case since he was arrested at Okanagan Landing, British Columbia, Canada, accused of killing Walter Collins, Lewis and Nelson Winslow and an unidentified Mexican boy on his father's chicken ranch in Riverside County.

TALKS FREELY

Northcott talked freely as the train neared Los Angeles, he apparently realizing that he shortly would be placed on trial and wanting to give something of his side of the various cases.

"I will have four attorneys to defend me. I will not say who they will be. All arrangements are being made by J. McKinley Cameron, of Calgary, Alta., who was the lawyer for my mother," Northcott said.

"I know absolutely nothing of the crimes of which I have been charged. In fact, I know far less than any person, for while I was in Oakalla prison I was not allowed to follow developments of the cases as they were presented in the newspapers."

In referring to the confession which was formally announced after midnight today by Deputy District Attorney Earl E. Redwine, of Riverside County, Northcott characterized it as "ridiculous."

"I didn't make any confession," he continued.

He was asked whether he was the son of Mrs. Louise Northcott, who is charged with having helped him in the actual killing of little Walter Collins with an ax.

SILENT ABOUT MOTHER

Northcott smiled broadly. Then he grew sober and asked:

"Do you doubt your mother?"

Pressed for a more specific answer, he said, half angrily:

"I won't discuss that."

The question was founded on the statement by Deputy District Attorney Redwine that he expected to bring out at Northcott's trial the fact that Northcott is in reality a foster-brother of Sanford Clark, his 15-year-old accuser, and the son of Mrs. Winnie Clark, of Saskatoon, Alberta. Pressed for details about the murder of the Mexican boy at the chicken ranch, Northcott became sarcastic. In reply to a specific question whether or not he had admitted taking the headless body from the chicken ranch to Puente, where it was found, he replied:

"I am not in the habit of driving hearses. If I was in the hearse business maybe I would have taken the body there. But that's not my business, so I didn't do it."

DELAY GRANTED IN M'MANUS HEARING

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The hearing of George A. McManus, charged with the murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler, today was postponed until Wednesday by Judge Francis X. Mancuso on request of States Attorney Joab Banton.

JANE DOE DROPPED

Banton said the hearing of testimony in the case would probably be completed by the grand jury today or Monday, at which time a blanket indictment would be issued against McManus, John Doe and Richard Roe.

Jane Doe, the mysterious woman who has figured in the testimony, has been dropped from the case, Banton said.

M'MANUS—STILL SMILING

McManus and his attorney, James D. C. Murray, appeared in court. McManus was his usually suave, confident self.

"They have not sufficient evidence to hold McManus, but I will not press that point until the hearing," Murray said, "my client will patiently await exoneration."

M'CABE HELD AGAIN

"Tough Willie" McCabe, colorful young Broadway bookmaker and racketeer, today was being held in $10,000 bail as a material witness in the fatal shooting.

McCabe, who recently was exonerated of all connection with the crime, was ordered held by District Attorney Joab A. Banton so that "I can question him when I want to question him," to use the prosecutor's own words.

TESTIFY MONDAY

McCabe is scheduled to testify Monday before the grand jury, which is hunting indictments in the slaying.

Meyer and Sam Boston, gambling associates of Rothstein, also were ordered held in $10,000 bail by the District Attorney. They will probably go before the grand jury at the same time McCabe appears.

Today

on the fingers of one hand, and three of the five are rather queer.

SEATS on New York's Stock Exchange continue climbing to fabulous prices, and should reach $1,000,000, if the boom lasts, with 5,000,000-share days plentiful.

Exchanges in other cities rise in value also.

A seat on the San Francisco curb exchange sold this week for $10,000 above the previous high price.

HOW far this boom will go, nobody knows. Actually increased earnings by industrial corporations make all guesses worthless. The curious thing is that several industrial stocks, paying no dividends at all, sell at the highest prices. The public evidently thinks it knows of something in the background.

GOV. SMITH'S native city did not desert him. He carried New York with 453,805 votes to spare, 1,167,906 for Smith, against 714,101 for Hoover. This seems to settle the suggestion that "Tammany knifed Smith" and proved Tammany efficiency.

In New York state at large, Herbert Hoover got more votes than any candidate in the state's history.

TOWN HALL SITE HEARING TODAY

The County Planning Commission granted a hearing to the Town Hall Committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in Old City Hall late this afternoon.

John E. McKirdy, a member of the commission, said it was unlikely that a definite recommendation for the town hall site would be made by the commission at this time. The County Commissioners will have the last word on the subject, but it is expected they will abide by the planning commission's recommendation.

It has tentatively eliminated from consideration all but five of the numerous locations recommended. Director Norman F. Brown, of the County Department of Public Works, was asked to study the five sites and report on cost and on their suitability in various respects. He has not yet reported.

The five sites under consideration include Monument Hill, North Side, the entrance to Schenley Park, another site in Oakland, and two downtown locations.

The town hall is to cost $6,000,000. There was an item of that amount for the purpose in the $43,000,000 county bond issue approved by the voters last June.

self in financial difficulties after cornering the "Stutz" market. His father refused to aid him, it was said. The younger Ryan later was expelled from the stock market.

$4 EQUAL PARTS

The will, a document of 33 typewritten pages, filed today, directed that the residuary estate be divided into 54 parts and distributed as follows:

(a)—Twelve parts in trust for Glendenning J. Ryan, a son, who is to receive the income for life and upon his death the principal is to be divided among his children, who however are not to receive the principal until they reach the age of 30 years.

(b)—Twelve parts to John B. Ryan, a son, with the same provision about his children.

(c)—Five parts are to be divided by the trustees among the children of his deceased son, Joseph J. Ryan.

(d)—Similar provision is made for the children of his deceased son, William K. Ryan.

(e)—Eight parts are to be divided among the children of Allan A. Ryan.

(f)—Twelve parts to his widow, Mary T. Ryan.

The trustees are directed to pay to Mrs. Ryan so much of the income of these 12 parts as are necessary to support her. The surplus is to be divided into 42 equal parts.

Herbert H. Vreeland, his business secretary, receives $50,000 for "unending loyalty and marked ability" in handling the magnate's affairs.

To the University of Virginia go oil paintings of the founders of the Virginia company. The pictures are at the Ryan estate, Oak Ridge, in Virginia, the state of his birth.

Helen M. Seely, the financier's secretary, receives $5,000 and life income from a $100,000 trust fund.

MARYLANDERS DEMAND REPEAL OF GAS-TAX LAW

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A measure to repeal the two-cent gasoline tax in Maryland, which provides for the construction of lateral roads and the elimination of grade crossings, will be introduced in the 1929 session of the State Legislature which convened on January 2 by Yewell W. Dillehunt, delegate from the Fifth District.

Mr. Dillehunt, in discussing the fight which he proposes to lead, declared that the bill which assessed the tax was "stampeded" through the Legislature by Gov. Ritchie and the "party bosses." He declared the people of Baltimore and several counties were against the two-cent tax.

He said that most Baltimoreans are willing to share in the expense of the main county and state roads, but are opposed to what he termed "by-paths" which they seldom see.

At present there is a four-cent tax on gasoline, half of which is being collected for the construction and maintenance of state highways, and of the other two cents, one and a half goes to the construction of lateral roads and the remaining half-cent toward the elimination of grade crossings.

Mr. Dillehunt said that his measure would be directed primarily at the lateral boards tax, but the grade crossing elimination provision would be included. He said that he plans to place his proposal before the city delegation to the Legislature which is to meet prior to the opening of the session.

GARDNER WILL URGE POLICE SHAKE-UP

With the special grand jury recessed, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today began preparation of a presentment which probably will include, besides recommendations for many indictments, suggestions for drastic changes in the organization of the city police bureau and dismissal of many police commanders.

Gardner expected to complete the presentment by end of next week, when the grand jury probably will include its task of hunting evidence of graft in the city and county. Between that time and Monday, when the jury will reconvene, he will call many more witnesses, including many police officials.

PROBES BANK ACCOUNTS

The district attorney wants the police commanders to explain the discrepancy between their prosperity, as revealed by their bank accounts and their official incomes. This comes as the result of examination Wednesday of accounts of 59 police officials, including Public Safety Director James M. Clark, Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh and Walsh's assistant, Leo Coleman.

Many witnesses may be needed to check up on the alibis of overwealthy policemen, Gardner believed, and he expected this phase of the inquiry to require most of the week. Other witnesses will be questioned on the liquor racket and lotteries.

After the special jury's presentment has been made to Judge James B. Drew, the November grand jury will be reconvened to draft indictments upon the recommendations of the special investigating jury.

VESTRIS PROBE BY SENATE TO BE ASKED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(INS.)—Senator Jones (Rep.), of Washington, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, announced today he would introduce a resolution next week calling for a complete investigation of the sinking of the liner Vestris, by a joint committee of Congress.

The scope of the investigation, Senator Jones said, will be determined by the report of United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle in New York, who has been conducting the present inquiry.

N. Y. INQUIRIES ENDING

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(INS.)—Final witnesses were to be heard today at the two federal inquiries into the sinking of the liner Vestris, with a loss of 110 lives. Indications were the hearings will close soon.

After all the testimony is heard Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney, who is conducting the inquiry before Commissioner Francis O'Neill, will hold a consultation with experts before making public his decision.

INSPECTORS UIZZED

The Department of Commerce hearing at the customs house likewise will be brought to a close. Its province was to determine whether the Vestris was properly inspecetd by United States inspectors before the British ship departed on its ill-fated voyage.

Tuttle's inquiry, on the other hand, had as its object the fixing of the blame for the disaster.

General belief today was that unless something unforeseen develops the direct cause of the Vestris disaster, one of the greatest of a decade, may never be fully known.

HOOVER FINDS BUSINESS HEALTHY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover's last official pronouncement as a servant of the government before his election as President was made public today in the form of the annual report of the Commerce Department for the fiscal year 1928, which closed last June 30.

The document stressed "the remarkable continuity of the prosperity of the United States during recent years and its prevailing upward trend."

The foreword, usually the Secretary's own production, said of the farm situation:

"It is true that the increase in agricultural production has been decidedly less rapid than that in the production of manufactured and mineral products. The demand for farm products, which are for the most part necessities of life, tends to increase little if any more rapidly than population. On the other hand, there is practically no limit to the demand for manufactured commodities, many of which are in the nature of semi-luxuries or luxuries."

Turning to another field, the report remarked:

BUILDING UNPARALLELED

"During the past seven or eight years, the amount of construction (of buildings) in the United States has been unparalleled in the history of this or any other important country. This high activity reflects both expansion of the equipment of industry and commerce and marked improvement in the quality of that equipment, and, above all, in the quality of the homes of the people."

Railroads were said to "have continued to furnish adequate and efficient service and to enjoy large traffic and revenues."

Analyzing the movement of gold to Europe, the report said that after making allowance for "the extraordinary volume of trading on the stock exchange," the situation indicated "a healthy state of business activity."

EXPORT TRADE GROWS

The country's foreign trade was discussed by Dr. Julius Klein, the department's director in that activity. Canada's emergence as the best customer of the United States, displacing Great Britain from a long held post, was noted, and the conclusion was expressed that international exchanges for the year had brought about "very heavy new investments of American capital in foreign countries."

Expansion in the export of manufactured goods, Dr. Klein said, was the most remarkable fact disclosed.

"The efficiency of American production, the vigorous efforts of American businessmen in finding markets, and the active aid in promoting trade," the report declared, "have borne fruit which must furnish satisfaction to all classes of our people."

W. P. MacCracken, assistant secretary for aeronautics, declared there had been "phenomenal progress in every phase of the industry" during the year. He remarked upon "unprecedented increase in air transport service alone," which had resulted in increasing the regularly flown air route mileage in the country from 8,396 miles to 11,191.

3 GIRLS LEAVE CAR AND LOSE BELONGINGS

Miss Ada Hawkins, of 1136 Morningside avenue, told police she intended to drive to New York, taking with her Miss Louise Hetherington, and Ann Hetherington, both of 1106 Jancey street. The three left their automobile for a short time last night and upon their return discovered their loss.

WHITNEY HEIRS LIVE ON SIMPLEST OF FARE

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Thanksgiving did little to relieve the monotonous plainness of the diet of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Payson, ultimate heirs of the millions of their grandfather, Payne Whitney.

The children—Daniel Carroll, 3½ years old; Sandra, aged 2, and baby Payne, 16 months—live lives of Spartan simplicity, and not even the great American feast-day was permitted to disturb their regimen.

Their fare was only slightly richer than that to which they are accustomed.

Milk is the principal item in their diet. They have a simple meal of bread and milk on occasions when children of families not one-hundredth as well off as the Paysons would feast luxuriously.

And everything else in the Payson children's lives follows the same pattern. Their toys are few and inexpensive. The Paysons intend that their children shall be unspoiled.

RIVER SUICIDE UNIDENTIFIED

Efforts are being made at the county morgue to establish the identity of a man, about 42, who leaped from the Smithfield Street Bridge into the Monongahela River Wednesday night. Rivermen recovered the body a few minutes later and rushed the man to Allegheny General hospital where he was pronounced dead.

In his pocket, morgue attaches say, an envelope was found, bearing the name of Vincent P. O'Neal, 330 Shiloh street. Deputy coroners telegraphed to Cincinnati where relatives of the O'Neal man are believed to live but have not yet located them.

THANKSGIVING MADE HAPPY FOR POOR

Pittsburgh observed Thanksgiving yesterday with church services, generous contributions to the poor, and athletic events. Many churches held early morning prayer services. The city's unfortunate were fed and entertained in homes and charitable institutes and prison inmates had special fare. Football games were held in all communities and special performances were scheduled for all theaters.

A veteran city policeman was the principal speaker at a dinner for former inmates of the Western Penitentiary yesterday in the Parting of the Ways Home. Patrolman Gottlieb Schindel, a veteran of 32 years' service on the city force, gave 250 former prisoners advice on "going straight." He has walked the beat where the home is located for the last 16 years. William B. Rodgers, a director of the home, also spoke. Rollo McBride, superintendent, presided. Music was furnished by the Oliver High School Orchestra.

At the Western Penitentiary the prisoners had a special Thanksgiving dinner. Pork chops took the place of turkey, but the rest of the menu was true Thanksgiving fare. A program was given by the Variety Club. The inmates of the county jail and of the workhouse at Blawnox also enjoyed dinners and entertainment.

The City Home at Mayview provided an elaborate menu for its inmates. Baskets for the poor of the city were provided by the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America.

A Thanksgiving dinner was served to more than 500 persons at the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor Hotel, Duquesne way. Turkey and the many side dishes adorned the tables. If the diner was able to pay, he was charged 25 cents. If he had no money he got the meal free.

Liberty Motor Now Declared Obsolete

Washington, Nov. 30.—The Liberty motor, sensation of the World War, is completely obsolete today and should be discarded, Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison declared in his annual report.

Referring to the enormous advance in design and construction of airplane engines during the past decade, he added:

"The Liberty motor is unreliable, inefficient and uneconomical compared with modern motors, and Congress should not be asked to appropriate any more funds for planes equipped with them. They should be eliminated as rapidly as possible."

NEELD FUNERAL HELD AT HOME IN CRAFTON

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Almos Davidson Neeld, internationally known consulting engineer, of Pittsburgh, who died Wednesday at his home in Crafton. The services were conducted in the family home. Burial was private.

From all parts of the world messages of condolence to Mr. Neeld's family arrived today, from personal friends in the engineering profession and leaders of building projects who at various times sought his skill.

Mr. Neeld was born in what was then West Liberty borough on February 15, 1858, and lived to direct the work of boring through Mt. Washington and building the Liberty Tunnels, the most daring engineering feat of his age. This, above all the many projects in which he was engaged, stands as a monument to his memory.

BUILDS TUNNEL BRIDGE

In 1875, at the age of 17, Mr. Neeld was graduated from the Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh. He became engineer in charge of new construction for the Pittsburgh and Western Railroad, leaving in 1885 to become engineer of construction and maintenance for the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

Before he was 25 years old Mr. Neeld startled Pittsburgh by building the tunnel and a high bridge by which the Wabash Railroad was brought into the heart of the city, a feat before considered impossible.

INTERNATIONAL FAME

In 1888 Mr. Neeld entered the contracting business in Pittsburgh and Washington, D. C. His designs on arch bridges in Washington and in Schenley Park, Pittsburgh, brought him international fame. He was the first engineer to compile a complete table on safe loads and stresses for plate girder bridges. Products of his research he freely gave to his profession.

On April 28, 1886, Mr. Neeld was married to Emma English, daughter of A. H. English and Emily Schaffer English. Two children were born, Almos Davidson Neeld, Jr., and Robert E. Neeld, who died last October.

County detectives and Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr are investigating reports that a man was seen running from several other fires in the district within the last two weeks. Yesterday's fire was fought for more than two and a half hours by fire departments from Springdale and New Kensington. John Hodel owned the garages and John Slifer was owner of the burned residence.

1929 SEEN AS BIG AUTO YEAR

industry on the same plane as agriculture in its importance to the welfare of the country. He regards the automotive industry as the greatest in the world. Four or five years ago it passed in volume steel and steel products, the next largest industry.

BIG AS AGRICULTURE

"The importance of the automotive industry to the prosperity of the country is apparent," said the General Motors chief executive, leaning forward on his desk. "It has passed steel. The wealth produced annually through the production of motor cars and the use of cars is approximately equivalent to the wealth produced yearly through the process of agriculture. This makes the automotive industry just as big as agriculture!

"I estimate that 10 per cent of the people of the United States are dependent, directly or indirectly, on the automotive industry for their purchasing power. That means that 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 people are dependent, directly or indirectly, on the automotive industry for their livelihood."

Mr. Sloan leaned back. He gazed out upon the towering structures of Broadway reflectively. His thoughts were interrupted by a long distance call. Then by another. Several important executives interrupted the interview to discuss a business matter. Stenographers and private secretaries came in and quietly laid papers, containing masses of figures, upon his desk. Obviously, in directing General Motors, he is a very busy man.

"To what do you attribute the amazing development of General Motors?" he was asked.

His fine, rather heavily lined face, took on a thoughtful expression.

"First of all, we have a product that everybody fundamentally wants," he replied.

General Motors, as virtually every one knows, manufactures a variety of the best known motor cars produced in America. It has plants in more than 50 cities here and overseas. It has more than 18,000 dealers in 103 countries. It has nearly 60,000 stockholders.

TELLS SECRET

"The measure of success of any institution or business depends, first, on having a fundamental demand," Mr. Sloan continued. "Second, it must have a reasonable amount of capital. And third, there must be proper management—that is, constructive management."

General Motors is an example in a big way of "democracy in business," he declared. He amplified this statement thus:

"I mean by that that no autocratic decisions are made on any question of policy or procedure. The policy is to get the best thought from the entire organization as to what should and should not be done. Any and all persons who can contribute to the welfare of the organization are welcome to express their opinions. We are more concerned in getting the best solution than from whom the solution may come. In that way we have the advantage of the viewpoints of many trained minds rather than being dependent upon one individual."

Sloan's associates are quick to attribute to their president the qualities that make for a business genius. They say he is eminently fair, an indomitable worker, a splendid organizer and the ideal type of executive to co-ordinate and crystallize the corporation's policies.

General Motors has about 100 executives and 210,000 employes, Mr. Sloan said. As chief executive of this great organization, Sloan "never issues orders." He "confers" and decides. He declares frankly that the organization has become so large and far-flung that it could not be conducted successfully if any one man sought to impose his will arbitrarily upon everybody else.

"I believe," Mr. Sloan said, "that there is some thought along the direction that the great industrial institutions this country is developing—that is, big business—tends to prevent the development of the initiative of the individual.

"This is not true in the case of General Motors. Our administrative policy is to place the responsibility squarely on the individual for operating the various units that comprise the organization. Those individual executives have equal or more opportunity to excercise their initiative than have the directing heads of the usual small business concern."

(Editor's note—Tomorrow Mr. Sloan will discuss the foreign markets for automobiles in another exclusive article.)

Our Daily Short Story

A Fortune in Shorthand

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS.

MARY PAIGE had spent most of her life within the kindly shelter of Uncle Nathan's humble home. During the last years of the old man's life she was his sole dependence for care and companionship.

Just before he died he said to his niece, "I want you to have my little farm, Honey. I made my will when you were a child and left everything to you. I don't suppose Zeke will want the property; but if he does he shan't have it."

Mary knew that Ezekiel Paige had neither written nor visited his father since the two parted in anger years ago, but she was too concerned about Uncle Nathan's illness to give much thought to other matters.

After her uncle's death, Mary rented the farm to a thrifty couple and went to Tupelo, the nearest town to spend the winter. She lived at Mrs. Spark's boarding house and attended business school where she took a course in stenography.

It was while Mary was there that Sam Sparks came home from college.

A job as janitor in an office building was all that he could find in the way of work, so he took that.

For a long time Sam labored six days in the week at the menial tasks he had set himself to perform and Mary studied her shorthand. But they found time to play around together in the evenings. Sam loved Mary from the beginning and she returned his affection with interest.

At last Mary Paige completed her training and began looking for a position. It was at this point in her affairs that some astounding news came to her in the form of a letter.

"I am taking possession of the little farm that was my father's," wrote Ezekiel Paige, "and I will therefore ask you to remove any personal belongings that you care to retain. As you probably know, my father died without a will and under the law his estate goes to me—his only legal heir. If there are any questions that you wish to ask, kindly consult our old family lawyer, Mr. T. H. Mears, in Tupelo."

That same night Sam came racing home with other surprising news. A big power company had secured the right to develop the power in the river that crossed the Paige farm. The old waterfall where the plant must be built was a stone's throw from the Paige cornfield and the purchase of the property would be necessary.

"You'll be rich, Mary," cried Sam joyously. "It won't do us any good," she answered dolefully.

"What's the matter?"

She handed him her cousin's letter.

"The dirty hound!" Sam muttered, "and that hypocritical Mears is no better. His office is in our building and he's the biggest crook in it."

Our Daily Short Story

A Fortune in Shorthand

Of course Mary cried a little.

"Never mind, darling, I'll take care of you," he said, "I won't always be a janitor. I can make a living for you and I will, too."

A week later Mary stopped on her way home to speak with Sam.

"Come on in and wait a few minutes," he said, "I'll be through directly and we can go home together."

Sam was cleaning out a cabinet in the office of T. H. Mears.

"The old devil told me to burn everything in here," he stated, picking up an armfull of papers.

He hurried out with his armfull of old dusty papers, leaving behind him a trail of trash that he dropped. Just as he reached the hall, several small note books slipped from his arms and fell with a clatter in the doorway. Mary, laughing, went over and gathered up the litter. One of the books lay open and she glanced idly at the page. Stenographic notes. She wondered if she could read them. Yes, the dots and dashes, the lines and curves were the same that she used in her own system. She opened another of the note books and began translating the hieroglyphics. Just as Sam came back, she gave a little shriek.

"Here is my own name in this shorthand note book," she exclaimed. And then she read aloud from notes that were dated 10 years previous.

"It's Uncle Nathan's will," she whispered.

"Keep it to yourself," Sam cautioned. "Don't even tell Mother. Tomorrow morning we'll consult Dave Hobdy. He's the best lawyer in town. He'll tell you what to do."

Some careful inquiries on Lawyer Hobdy's part revealed the fact that on the date given on those stenographic notes that a Miss Minnie Singleton was Mr. Mear's stenographer. Further investigation showed that Miss Singleton had moved away and was with a certain firm in St. Louis. Mr. Hobdy made a trip to the city and came back accompanied by Miss Singleton. She said that the old note book was her own and that she remembered distinctly taking the dictation while Nathan Paige was in the office with her employer, 10 years before.

A very much perturbed Mears and a shaking colorless Ezekiel Paige faced David Hobdy in his office that same day. Miss Singleton, Sam and Mary stood close by.

"You'll either confess the truth here and now," David Hobdy said to Ezekiel Paige, "or you'll take the consequences." And at last the son admitted that his father's will had been destroyed.

"Mears said nobody except himself knew what a will had been drawn and that he would destroy it, provided he should share in the sale of my father's property."

"And I happen to know that the property sold for $200,000," declared David Hobdy. "Will you turn that over to the rightful owner or shall we drag the matter through the courts?"

And so it transpired that Mary Paige came into her own. And of course she shared her good fortune with Sam.

PLANE PILOT ARRESTED IN IOWA AS BOOTLEGGER

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Nov. 30.—(INS.)—Leonard Carothers, one of the best known aviators in this section, and Milo Hilton, of Cleveland, O., were under arrest here today on a charge of transporting whisky from Windsor, Can. Their bond was set at $4,000 each.

The men were arrested when their plane was forced down near Marshalltown. Whisky valued at $4,000 was confiscated. The liquor was being transported to Cedar Rapids for the Thanksgiving trade, it was said. Friends of Carothers from Cedar Rapids came here to make his bond.

Hilton learned to fly at Akron and a few months ago went to Des Moines, where he bought a plane. Dry officials say he has been "flying liquor" from Windsor to Iowa all summer.

Edward Campbell, of Bethel township was slightly burned and his home was damaged to the extent of $500 yesterday by flames which followed an attempt on Campbell's part, firemen say, to hasten a fire by pouring gasoline on it.

When the flames shot up into Campbell's face he screamed and his cries alarmed other members of the household who were forced to flee.

12,000 Barrels of Sauer Kraut Are Burned

PHELPS, N. Y., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Twelev thousand barrels of sauer kraut were destroyed in a fire which razed the plant of the Empire State Pickling Company here. The sauer kraut was valued at $200,000 and the damage to the plant increased the loss, as estimated by the president to $500,000.

New McKees Rocks School Dedicated

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the Pittsburgh Diocese of the Catholic Church, presided at the dedication of the new $165,000 parochial school and convent of St. Mark's Catholic Church, Munson avenue, McKees Rocks. A parade of more than 500 parishioners through the borough preceded the dedication. The Rev. Clement Hrtanek, of Homestead, delivered the sermon. The Rev. Joseph Vrhunec is pastor of the church. The new building is a two-story brick structure containing accommodations for 500 pupils and 12 nuns. The building was started last March. Victor Ravos was in charge of the arrangements.

Former Pennsylvania Couple Asphyxiated

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Harry Stadtman, 38, formerly of Beverley Heights, Pa., and his wife, Helen, 30, were found dead in their apartment here yesterday. A gas heater apparently had consumed the oxygen in the rooms. Mrs. Stadtman had a divorced husband and an 8-year-old daughter living in Des Moines, police were told.

GOBI EXPLORER RETURNS TO U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Roy Chapman Andrews, head of the Central Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, returned on the liner Leviathan last night from a stay of two years in the Orient.

Much of the time was spent in excavating in the Gobi Desert, where he said he and his party of 37 discovered what he believed was the "biggest mammal that has ever been recorded."

"I would say that from the shoulders down it would measure 15 feet," he said; "That its body would be 25 feet long and that it had a neck 12 feet long. It is a new beast and we have not given it a name."

Mr. Andrews explained that while the bones found were not from one animal enough had been located to reconstruct the skeleton of almost a complete beast.

The explorers also found a nest of dinosaur eggs, far removed from the place where Mr. Andrews previously made a similar discovery. Those in the second nest, he said, were smaller than the first and he believed they were from the duck-billed dinosaur.

"The real purpose of our expedition is to discover something of the development of man," Mr. Andrews said. "So far we have not found anything very definite. We have come upon rich deposits of the Pliocene Age, which is an age which might readily have left some record of human beings, and this is one of the strata we shall explore more when we go back in the spring."

Play World in Review Combined With News and Pictures About Theater

NEW YORK TO HONOR SOTHERN; "Y" PLAYERS PROGRESS; MOISSI IS COMING

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

THEY have queer ideas about political education in New York City. Their League for Political Education is planning a tribute to E. H. Sothern in the Town Hall on December 11. As far as appears from advance notes, Walter Hampden and Edith Wynne Matthison are the only theatrical people concerned. The purpose is to show public appreciation of Sothern's work in maintaining theatrical traditions and educating public taste for more than 40 years. Perhaps the League for Political Education isn't so far wrong, since it was proved during the last campaign that acting ability is an important asset in securing votes. Candidates and public officials are also required to pose before the camera so frequently, that it may soon be necessary to take a course in some dramatic school before running for office. The first step, naturally, would be to go on as a walking gentleman, and gradually progress to faster roles.

If anybody merits a tribute for service to the American stage, E. H. Sothern is the man. Since he retired from Shakespeare, in which he was associated so many years with Julia Marlow, he has not been able to find plays in which the public would accept him. Only one, "The Red Robe," by Brieux, was really a worthy vehicle. Now Mr. Sothern has returned to Shakespeare by giving dramatic recitals of "Hamlet," "Macbeth," and other characters. This ought to prove as successful as the famous readings of Charles Dickens, by which the English novelist earned over $100,000 on one American tour. But times have changed, and who can tell?

Playhouse of "Y" Very Ambitious

Next Tuesday the playhouse at the "Y" on Bellefield avenue ventures upon another ambitious experiment—a production of "Beggar on Horseback," a play which two American dramatists, we should say Pittsburgh dramatists, adapted from the Hungarian. "Beggar on Horseback" requires elaborate scenery and no mean degree of stage management. Evidently Frank and Helen Stout, who have charge of this dramatic center in Oakland, are not afraid of hard work and high goals. And they have behind them a group of young people who love the theater and are ready to do some hard work themselves.

The two playwrights responsible for "Beggar on Horseback" are George S. Kaufman, who was born in Pittsburgh in 1889, and started out as a newspaperman, and Marc Connelly, who was born in McKeesport in 1890, and began as a reporter on the Pittsburgh Sun in 1910. Together these two have written "Dulcie," "To the Ladies," "Merton of the Movies" and "Beggar on Horseback," besides several musical shows. Pittsburgh is proud of the place they have won, and they will have no reason to be ashamed of Pittsburgh if they see the production at the "Y."

Moissi to Visit Pittsburgh Soon

We are to see another great European actor within a few weeks, as Alexander Moissi will visit Pittsburgh in Tolstoy's Redemption." This play, also known as "The Living Corpse," gave John Barrymore his first great opportunity in serious drama, after he had shown his powers in Galsworthy's "Justice." It is terrific—unquestionably the finest thing Tolstoy has done for the stage.

Moissi, who was brought over by Reinhardt, is hailed as the greatest living Hamlet. The Hungarian dramatist Molnar grows rhapsodic about him, as this tribute reveals:

"A bird of passage, who with the warm temperament of the singing guitars, the sweet untroubled poesies of the south, drifts to the north—who carries the seriousness, discipline and sobriety of the north into the south—he brings north and south close to each other, the most charming, noblest bird of passage in the theater of today."

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Ex-Portugal Premier Held in Rebel Plot

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Antonio Maria da Silva, former premier of Portugal, was arrested yesterday on a charge of complicity in a plot against the government.

Sr. Da Silva acted as premier in the Portuguese government at various times between 1920 and 1926. It is his second arrest recently in connection with a plot against the government. He spent two days in prison last June on a similar charge.

HER HUSBAND'S AWFUL COUGH ANNOYED EVERYONE NEAR HIM

His Cough Worried Family; Ordinary Remedies Did Him No Good.

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS AND WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor who said he was all right but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into the house, Movie or Church and soon he would be hawking and coughing terribly and at night he was all stuffed up," declared Mrs. D. R. M——.

"He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it. I finally told our doctor, who laughingly said: "Men are all alike and you can't blame him much, so go get him a big bottle of Lin-O-Nine, which is a nice tasting Flaxseed Oil, Cassia, Eucalyptus, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine remedy, far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quicker."

RESULTS WONDERFUL

"He liked Lin-O-Nine so well he took a spoonful before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped the cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Children love to take it, too."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well-stocked druggists have Lin-O-Nine, 50c or $1.00 sizes, or send dollar bill to nationally famous Kerr Chemical Company, Brentwood, Md., for large bottle, parcels post.

(Note: We sell and recommend Lin-O-Nine).

GRAY HAIR INDICATES BAD HEALTH EXPERT DECLARES

Gray Hair Is Dead Hair. He Proves It Can Be Revived Again

TONIC STARTS YOUTHFUL COLOR RETURNING AGAIN

A newly discovered scalp tonic banishes itchy eczema, dandruff and falling hair, and while doing this, users notice in amazement that the youthful, original color returns to their gray hair, almost as if by magic.

Primarily intended only as a tonic to put the hair roots, scalp and pigment glands in vigorous condition—it has followed that with restoration of healthy conditions, the hair revives and changes back from gray to its natural shade of brown, red, auburn, black or blonde as the case may be. What is more becoming than nature's own choice of color to match your style? No one wants an old-fashioned dye.

It seems a doctor asked himself this question:—If I can stimulate various organs of the body with a tonic, why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive those inactive glands so nature will resume putting pigment into the hair tubes of people who are gray? His search led to endless experiments, but the reader may now obtain at drug stores here, the tonic finally perfected, under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic.

Thousands of exhaustive empirical tests prove Lea's Hair Tonic absolutely unvarying in results and harmless even if used for many years. As a test, one may apply to small spot on scalp a few days and watch results.

Unlike old-time dyes, Lea's Hair Tonic is applied as far as possible to the scalp only. (You can dip your hair in a whole basin of Lea's and not change the color, but apply as directed with the finger tips to hair roots and scalp and it will restore original color all the way from beneath the scalp to the very tips). The doctor once demonstrated this to prove Lea's wasn't a dye. It doesn't stain—experts cannot detect its use. Shampoo as often as desired. Complete satisfaction guaranteed. At drug stores, or nib dollar bill to name and address and send, Lea Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. Bottle and directions by return mail.

SECOND WEEK HERE FOR MARILYN

"Rosalie," which is to remain a second and final week in the Nixon, beginning Monday, is a Ziegfeld musical comedy, with Marilyn Miller and Jack Donahue in the featured roles. It is a satire set in a mythical kingdom and West Point. A large company supports the stars. Matinees will be Wednesday and Saturday.

William Hodge comes to the Alvin for a week, beginning next Monday night, in his mystery comedy, "Straight Thru the Door." It is a return engagement for one week only. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

"The Command to Love," direct from runs in New York and Chicago, comes to the Pitt for the week of December 3, with matinees Thursday and Saturday. Mary Nash, Basil Rathbone, Violet Kemble Cooper, Henry Stephenson and Ferdinand Gottschalk are the five principals of the comedy.

Because the natives of the South Seas refused to simulate death even for a motion picture, Director W. S. Van Dyke was forced to engage a dozen white extras and paint their bodies for one scene in "White Shadows in the South Seas," coming to the Penn screen next week.

"Outcast," from the noted stage play, has been made into a cinema drama, starring Corinne Griffith, and it will be shown in the Stanley next week. Edmund Lowe plays opposite Miss Griffith.

George Sidney and Charlie Murray are starred in "Flying Romeos," coming to the Davis screen next week. The Atlantic City Minstrels will head the Keith-Albee vaudeville.

Esther Ralston is seen in a new type of role for her in "The Sawdust Paradise," next week's sound synchronized screen feature in Loew's Aldine.

"Bowery Burlesquers" will be the attraction next week in the Academy. Billy Foster and Marty Semon are the principal funsters. Tenney Hilson is the prima donna.

Irene Rich becomes a candidate for civic leadership in "Women They Talk About," which comes to the screen of the Grand next week.

Monday, December 3, will mark the inception of talking pictures in the Harris. The first sound picture there will be "Hit of the Show," featuring Joe Brown. Six vaudeville acts also will be seen.

Vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the last half of this week features the Yacopi Troupe in an acrobatic act. The photoplay feature is "The Farmer's Daughter."

THANKSGIVING DONATIONS SWELL WELFARE FUND

Without relaxing their efforts during the Thanksgiving holiday, the workers in the Welfare Fund campaign today appeared with tens of thousands of new subscriptions for local philanthropies. More than 100 captains of teams had reports prepared for presentation at the final luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

The amount already reported is $16,242.56. It was announced today that the total goal of $965,879 must be raised by Monday night, when the last meeting of the campaign will be held.

Contributions from employes of stores, factories, transportation companies, public utilities corporations and large industrial plants are swelling totals of the sums coming into the coffers of the Welfare Fund today. These teams were organized by the employes themselves, constituting a volunteer service.

"Employes took hold of the work with energy in soliciting their fellow workers," said Augustus K. Oliver, chairman of the campaign, "and they have met a willing and generous response. This part of the work has been one of the most wholesome and reassuring features of the Welfare Fund's canvass. Our gratitude goes also to the army of loyal supporters who carried on the house-to-house canvass and to the people who met them with a smile and a contribution. It encourages us to look forward hopefully to our ultimate success."

Pittsburgh social workers contributing through the team of Dr. L. B. Bernstein to date have contributed $6,304.05. There were 472 contributors. Among the city employes 1,510 gave $2,633.02.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. Sara Jane Hawk, who at 75 reset her own broken arm, and at 80 was pronounced dead by a physician, died yesterday at 106. She was a native of Livingston county, New York.

PORTES GIL PLEDGES U. S. AMITY; PRAISES MORROW

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 30.—(INS.)—Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil, who took the oath of office today as successor to the retiring president, Plutarco Elias Calles, in his inaugural address pledged Mexico's friendship to the United States, and hoped the present cordial relations would endure.

Speaking in the national stadium before a crowd of 40,000, including the diplomatic corps, the provisional president, who will assume office at midnight, paid tribute to the retiring president and American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow for their efforts in eliminating misunderstandings between Mexico and the United States.

Senor Portes Gil departed from custom in making an inaugural speech. He announced a constructive program, stressing his sympathy for labor and the grarian movement. He hinted there would be a housecleaning in the government and appealed to Mexicans to show their patriotism to their native land rather than pledge their allegiance to any faction or political leader.

FOLLOWS COOLIDGE LEAD

The new national executive followed a lead set by President Coolidge when he demanded strict economy in government expenditures. He reflected another policy of the United States when he declared that Mexico does not covet the land of any other nation.

The provisional president's address, in part, follows:

"The conditions under which I was designated for the presidency of the republic oblige me to meditate over the grave responsibilities that attend upon government.

"The effort realized for the benefit of labor not only does not prejudice industrial progress, but assures better general conditions, greater production and the industrial development of the country; it assures, furthermore, the intellectual and economic progress of laborers and their organizations.

"Also, it is imperative that we continue allocating lands to the country folk in order to create a free and prosperous rural class.

"I wish my government to be made up of the best prepared element possible.

SPEAKS FOR ECONOMY

"Above all, the government, while in my charge, will base its domestic reputation in prudent administration of public monies. Balancing of the budget will be an immutable part of the financial policy of my administration.

"In our foreign relations there is little new to add. Through more than 100 years of independent life, Mexico has given absolute respect to the peoples and governments of other countries.

"Let it be known that my country has no desire nor aspiration to advance beyond its frontiers, except when the excellence of its intellectual attainments or its manufactured products merit the worthy and voluntary acceptance in other countries.

PRAISES MORROW

"In our foreign policy, for reasons of proximity, and for numerous economic reasons that unite us with the United States, a special mention is merited.

"Fortunately the wisdom and patriotism with which President Calles and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow have served their respective countries have erased suspicions and brought the two neighboring peoples to the good understanding that now exists and which, with all my heart, I hope will endure.

"Should there be in the American government an equal desire to protect our sovereignty — something which Mexico cannot retrograde from nor concede, whatever be the magnitude of the sacrifices necessary for sustaining it—the American people will have no ground for complaint against their neighbor to the south."

Thanksgiving One Long Waltz to Indians

MOSCOW, Ida., Nov. 30.—(AP.) Tribal war and sun dances abandoned more than a half century ago as features of their Thanksgiving celebration, were revived last night by Nez Perce Indians who, with several hundred braves, from the Blackfoot, Colville, Yakima, Warm Springs and Umatilla reservations, began in a three-day Thanksgiling ceremonial at the Nez Perce reservation, near Lapwai, southeast of here.

To the music of tom-toms and snake rattles the Indians, in full regalia, will continue the dances until Saturday.

Aged Priest, Ill, Ends Suffering With Gun

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—The Rev. William J. Ryan, 70, of Everett, Ill., who was ordained a priest of the Catholic Church a quarter of a century ago, shot and killed himself last night while walking near the Alexian Brothers Hospital, where he was a patient. Hospital authorities said the priest, who had been a patient since April, had suffered at times so severely as to become temporarily insane. Father Ryan had been in charge of St. John's Church, Everett, for 15 years.

High School Girls Suspected as Robbers

BROCKTON, Mass., Nov. 30.—Roundup of young high school society girls believed to have knowledge of the series of robberies which have already involved Miss Ruth Bolling, 19-year-old student, and two high school boys, is expected when Miss Bolling appears in court today to face a charge of larceny.

Miss Bolling, who has been wanted by police for some days, is charged with stealing a brooch and necklace of pearls from the home of Le Baron Atherton.

Bellevue "Spite" Land Ordered Sold

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

A TAXPAYER sends in a note saying that a certain place in the city, while displaying on the front door a notice that the place is under padlock, admits patrons by a rear door. Unfortunately, the address of the place is not given. He used the word "unfortunately" to suit both shades of opinion.

A letter comes from a reader in New York City. It is a four-dollar letter, including as it does a lavish use of high-powered English and a large supply of Latin words. The writer of the letter, one gathers, has rolled up his sleeves, spit on his hands, and plunged into a variety of criticism. Space forbids the use of the verbatim report. The fact that someone in New York selects this column as a recipient strikes us as strange, what with so many other available targets in the large city he lives. How come?

PREFACING his note with the statement that is bound to meet with serious objection, in that he says a note in this column affords the best publicity in the city, a correspondent asks that we say Post 351, American Legion, is to hold a get-to-gether meeting in the Homewood Realty Hall tonight. Such faith must not go unrewarded, although we must confess a certain skepticism about our influence. Only on those days that see us make an error are we certain that the column has a large audience.

A poetical suburbanite, during the last snowfall, noticed animal tracks in the snow around his stately manse. He kept a watch one night and was a little put out to discover that the footprints on the white-clad lawn came from nothing more romantic than stray skunks.

SIXTH AVENUE, between Wood street and Smithfield street, is distinctive through the presence of a graveyard set in the hustle and bustle of the downtown section; a graveyard situate between two churches, and on the opposite side of the street from the home of the Duquesne Club.

The Duquesne Club is one of the two notable clubs in town. The other is known as the Pittsburgh Club, in lower Penn avenue. There is talk now of dismantling the historic structure of the Duquesne Club to make way for a newer and more modern building.

Such a change will prove disappointing to Pittsburghers who long have associated the Duquesne Club with a certain patrician history of the town. There is something about the old-fashioned place that would be entirely lost if it gave way to a modern, up-to-date, hotel-like affair. It has at present a long waiting list of applicants, which might be removed by a building ample enough to take care of all applicants, and some part of its exclusiveness would thereby be lost.

As a local boy who always gets a kick out of looking at the windows to see our local millionaires awaiting their chauffeurs we trust that the talk of constructing a new Duquesne Club is as much a myth as that which says there is no Santa Claus.

Human Interest Note: A sub-patrolman of the city, with a wife and two children, is averaging $40 a month salary, if it can be called that. Under such circumstances he is expected to be a paragon of honesty and integrity. It doesn't seem here to be a good way to start out young men as law-enforcing officers. Some way should be found to allow even a sub-patrolman to support a wife and two kids.

Tech Co-Eds Award Sorority, Dormitory Scholarship Cups

MISS BISELL, MISS WAKEFIELD, MISS TEDROW

Alpha Kappa Psi, Carnegie Institute of Technology sorority, has been awarded the silver cup for the highest scholastic standing in the inter-sorority scholarship contest. Florence Wakefield, Laura Bisell and Irene Tedrow are members of the sorority.

DOROTHY BOWSER

Dorothy Bowser is house president of Elm House, whose occupants won the silver cup in the girls' inter-dormitory scholarship contest.

SORORITY PRIZE WINNERS 'STRUT'

Members of the Alpha Kappa Psi sorority of Carnegie Institute of Technology can be seen meandering about the campus these days with the haughty air of conquerors, all because the sorority has among its rank and file a larger number of students with high scholastic standing than any of the three other sororities. This was revealed with the award to the sorority of the annual inter-sorority silver scholarship cup. The Beetle sorority was adjudged second highest in scholastic standing. The other competing sororities were Beta Pi and Gamma Gamma Gamma. Miss Florence Wakefield, a senior, accepted the cup in behalf of Alpha Kappa Psi.

Competition in the inter-dormitory scholarship contest had been as keen among the 13 girls' dormitories as between the sororities. Elm Hall emerged as the victor with the highest scholarship standing. Its occupants also won a silver cup. Miss Dorothy Bowser, president, accepted the cup from Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology. Forbes Hall was second.

The inter-fraternity cup for which 19 fraternities were in the race, was won by Beta Psi Ro. Delta Mu was the runner-up. The cup in the men's inter-dormitory contest went to Henderson Hall, While McGill Hall followed second.

Founders' scholarships were awarded to students of high standing in the senior, junior and sophomore classes in the College of Fine Arts, College of Engineering, College of Industries and Margaret Morrison Carnegie College, as were Pittsburgh honor scholarships to graduates of Pittsburgh secondary schools; Allegheny county scholarships to graduates of county high schools; scholarships for students in evening classes, and scholarships from private donors.

Braddock's Oldest Mail Man Ends 36 Years Today

H. H. Fogle, of 518 Pitcairn street, Braddock, today completes 36 years of service as a mail carrier for the Braddock Postoffice. Thirty-six years ago the census of Braddock was taken and the following day Fogle started free mail delivery. Of the four men who comprised the original force Fogle is the only one who has remained in the mail service continuously.

DECLARES WIFE THREATENED HIS LIFE

His wife threatened to "put something in his coffee" and also declared she would shoot him, according to a bill of particulars filed in the divorce case of Howard Q. Smith, 422 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, against his wife, Isabella Jane Smith, of Edgewood.

Smith had charged his wife with cruel and barbarous treatment in his libel filed some time ago and then the wife filed an answer denying the allegations. This was followed by the husband presenting a bill of particulars. Smith says they were married in 1924 and that in January of the following year his wife threatened to poison him. He said she nagged him and ran up bills beyond his means to pay. In August of 1925 Smith avers his wife barred the house and would not permit him to enter. The libellant claims his wife told him that the one thing she wanted was his money and that anyhow she did not care for him.

COURT SIGNS ORDER FOR DISPOSAL

Judge Thomas J. Ford, of Common Pleas Court, has signed an order permitting Frank W. Thompson, of Bellevue, to sell a "spite" strip of land one foot in width for a length of approximately 1,400 feet, separating the property of Henry Wiesner from public thoroughfares, bordering on Ross township and Bellevue.

The strip of land in question is owned by the Keystone Land and Loan Association. When that concern laid out a plot of ground several generations ago, it reserved one foot of land between the company's land and the Wiesner property, because Wiesner would not give any of his ground for street purposes. To enable Wiesner to get out on the side in question, he had to go over the land company's property and the land company had been dissolved.

The petition to sell the strip in question to Wiesner was presented by Attorney John E. Winner, representing S. S. McKain, of Mercer, Pa., a former president of the land company, directing that a trustee be given the right to sell the strip to Wiesner for $10.

FIRES GO OUT, GAS SHORTAGE DENIED

Widow Loses Suit Against Borough

Mrs. Robert Barley, a widow of 906 Wood street, Wilkinsburg, lost her suit against the borough of Wilkinsburg for damages when Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court, declared a nonsuit. Mrs. Barley alleged that while riding in an automobile driven by her husband on July 26, 1926, she sustained injuries to her face and back when the machine was driven against a rope barricade that the borough had erected at Ross and Hay streets, Wilkinsburg. Mrs. Barley's husband has died since the accident. Judge Patterson declared the plaintiff did not prove negligence on the part of the borough.

Says Girl Negligent Court Here Reversed

Esther Levitt, Webster avenue, awarded $10,000 for an injured spine, by a Common Pleas Court in her suit against a downtown restaurant, the defendant later taking an appeal to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, has lost her case. The higher court declares that the lower court should have given binding instructions for a verdict for the defendant. Judge William I. Schaffer, who wrote the opinion and reviewed the testimony at some length, pointed out Miss Levitt testified she knew that the restaurant floor was greasy and slippery, because of it being mopped, yet she took the chance of walking on the slippery place, thus contributing to her own negligence. Samuel Levitt, father of the girl, had joined in the suit in the lower court.

PASTOR SAYS NATION SHOULD BE THANKFUL

The events for which the nation should be thankful were depicted yesterday morning by the Rev. James M. Ferguson, pastor of the Bellevue United Presbyterian Church, at a community Thanksgiving observance held by combined congregations of Avalon and Bellevue in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Taking his sermon from the Sixty-fifth Psalm, beginning, "Thou are crowning the year with goodness," the Rev. Ferguson recalled and discussed important happenings in the nation's welfare during the past year.

He discussed the recent harvest, and cited that while the farmers, who represent 15 per cent of the population, have not shared the nation's prosperity during the past year, the fact would doubtless persuade Congress to adopt legislative measures to "adequately and honorably relieve the farmers."

Secretary of State Kellogg's peace pact was defined by the Rev. Ferguson as the longest and most radical step toward the abolition of war. He discussed the pact and expressed his desire to see its ratification in the Senate.

The arrival of the Graf Zeppelin in this country was discussed, and the speaker declared that the trip was more than a mere feat or display, in that it expressed Germany's desire to again become commercial friends with the United States.

In speaking of the recent election he said that its most important result was the increased number of ballots cast. It also proved, the Rev. Ferguson said, that the majority of citizens were willing to abide by and were satisfied with the Eighteenth Amendment.

In conclusion he said:

"In the crown of the year there is a cluster of days—52 in number—Sabbath worship days! Prosperity without religion is dangerous. A prominent American preacher recently said: 'We have money enough to buy anything except the peace that passeth understanding.'"

MOTHER AND SON REGAIN HEALTH

Carnegie Lady Praises Ten Herbs; Ended Stomach and Liver Trouble.

"Ten Herbs has benefited my son and me so much that I think it is the greatest medicine that has ever been introduced in this city," was the statement of Mrs. Martha Hicks, 213 Pine Street, Carnegie, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this famous modern compound.

MRS. MARTHA HICKS

"I had been in a very bade state of health for many years," Mrs. Hicks continued. "My stomach was disordered. Gas would form and cause a terrible bloated feeling and belching after meals. My liver must have been out of order, for I was subject to bilious attacks and blurring of the eyes. Headaches and dizzy spells came on me. I was so nervous that I could not sleep—when morning came I was almost too tired to get up. Constipation bothered me so much that I had to keep taking physics. My son was troubled with ailments similar to mine. We tried several kinds of medicines, but never got satisfactory results.

"After reading about Ten Herbs in the papers, we started using your medicine. I have been relieved of stomach trouble. My appetite has improved wonderfully and the best part of it is that I do not have any distress after eating—no more gas, bloating, or belching. I am free of bilious attacks. Headaches, dizzy spells and blurring of the eyes have been relieved. I do not have to use any more physics, as constipation has been ended. It is fine to know that when I retire I can sleep soundly all night long. Ten Herbs gave my son the same good results that it did me, so we are glad to endorse your medicine to others."

Every day men and women of this section report that Ten Herbs helped them back to better health by relieving stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE AT GLORY BARN

Two services were held at the Glory Barn, Carson street, yesterday, the first one a Thanksgiving Day service, starting at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Theodore Sproul gave an address on the verse in St. Matthew's Gospel, "Enter ye in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice." The theme of his address was an argument that happiness that should fill the life of every follower of Christ.

Several persons were baptized at the close of the session. Each of the converts gave testimonials as to having been saved by Christ. Special prayers for those who were ill were offered, that definite answers be given to prayers for those who seek relief from mental, physical and spiritual troubles. Healing is claimed by the malicious stands upon their hands.

Last night one of the testimonies yet unpublished at mid-week service heard Wm. Hunter, pianist, give an interesting recitation that was broadcast over the Glory Barn station WMBI. Solos were sung by Mrs. Tina Sommerfeld, Mrs. Adda Kayser and Charles Davis. Sproul gave an address dealing with the Day of Jubilee, as referred to in Leviticus, comparing it with the Day of Atonement as referred to in the New Testament. He also spoke of the Day of the Gospel Dispensation, through which the world is now passing, so he said.

Several cases of healing were reported. Anna Mayer, of Disputanta, Va., said she had been deaf for nine years but was able to hear Sproul's voice after being anointed. Mrs. Beatrice Kneller, of 1411 Federal street, said she had been suffering with a goiter. After being anointed she was able to swallow without pain for the first time in several years.

Football Extra Issued by W. Va. College

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Setting what is believed to be a precedent in West Virginia college journalism, the Parthenon, Marshall College student publication, last night placed a football extra on sale on the streets of Huntington. The extra, believed to have been the first of its type in West Virginia, carried a complete play-by-play account of the Marshall-West Virginia Wesleyan game played here yesterday.

SENATOR BURTON PLEDGES BOULDER DAM SUPPORT

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Returning to his office at the Capitol in preparation for the opening of Congress next week, Senator-elect Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, today announced his full support of the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam bill when it comes up in the Senate for final action.

With respect to the Boulder Dam legislation, which would control waters of the Colorado River basin, Senator Burton occupies a unique position. He was a member of the House last session when the measure passed there, and now, having been elected to the Senate in the meantime, he will be given an opportunity to advance it further.

Pledging himself to aid proponents of the bill at the coming session, Senator Burton expressed the hope today that the matter will not be delayed.

"I have given many hours to the consideration of this project," he said, "as a member of the Committee on Rules of the House it fell my lot to present the special rule under which the bill was passed there, and I have listened to arguments pro and con. This proposed Boulder Dam has awakened a very bitter controversy. It has been the subject of long consideration.

FAVORS THE BILL

"Notwithstanding the time that I have given to it, I do not feel that I am completely master of the details. But I favor the bill. It is a great project. It is beyond the capacity of any private enterprise. It is a matter of the greatest interest to a number of states, to the government of the United States itself in the protection of its property, and we may say that, it is in line with the flood bill for the Mississippi River in that it saves a very large and fertile area from being destroyed by floods and also makes possible the irrigation of a very large quantity of land at present completely desert."

Analyzing general sections of the bill Senator Burton added:

"It will end a very dangerous situation which now exists in the Imperial Valley of California. The valley now secures its only water supply by a canal which runs from some 60 miles through the Republic of Mexico.

"The all-American canal, provided for in the bill, will furnish a substitute for this and at the same time carry the water at an elevation sufficient to make possible the irrigation of additional lands, mostly public."

Turkey in Paris But Cranberry Sauce?—Non

PARIS, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Complete absence of cranberry sauce rather marred the Thanksgiving dinner of American residents of Paris. Eating turkey without cranberries on the side, they thought they had a little less to be thankful for and they rather envied countrymen, who snugly enjoyed the luscious red sauce across the Atlantic.

Aside from this, Americans observed the day in the traditional manner. There were religious services in the American Pro-Cathedral with Dean Beekman officiating, and also in the American church in the Rue Berri, where Normal Armour, American Charge D'affairs, delivered an address in the absence of Ambassador Herrick. Characteristic Thanksgiving Day items were on the menus of all hotels catering to Americans.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade-Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Doris and Cornelia Niles.

Everybody who attended the performance of Doris Niles and her ballet in Syria Mosque last night will doubtless agree that no better entertainment could have been offered for Thanksgiving. There was never a slow tempo to allow us to think of our dinner, and the color was sufficient to enliven the groggiest brain. Assisting the dancers were six Spanish guitarists, who might have been easily replaced by another dance.

The program varied from the classic "sur le point" to modern Chinese, Indian and especially Spanish dances, seemingly the conventional offerings, yet nothing was trite. Doris Niles herself would refresh any of the older dance forms, but there is more than her vigorous steps to brighten these forms. Unlike the Denishawns, she is not interested as an ethnologist. She does not reproduce the life of India and Spain as a pageant of color and motion. She creates no living pictures from the canvasses of painters. On the contrary, she has studied the dances of nations, has idealized and often put new grace into ancient gestures, has developed other figures for toe dancing, and brings with it all flavor of Vienna, Paris and Madrid. Doris Niles relies little on posture. She dances.

In spite of her understanding of the old French peasant bourree and gavotte, or the fantasy of her Japanese fete, even of the fire of the Russian Gipsy rhapsodie, her heart is in Spain. Her "Memories of the Arena" is a truthful souvenir of the picador, realistic and as graceful. Her "Sevillana" and "Cani" are seductively Latin. Her Viennese waltz is as light as the spirit of that incomparable city.

Cornelia Niles is a worthy partner to her sister. She may lack some of the grander enthusiasm, some of the unbridled joy, but she makes a good picture, and her "Dancing Waves" struck quite a note of the elemental. The eight members of the ballet were always charming, and wore costumes that should be commended.

The music came from many fine composers, but was never excellent enough to detract from the dancers. The stage settings were crude, excepting where only a curtain was used, then the lighting was none too successful. It was an evening of splendid dancing.

$350,000 BLAZE AT BESSEMER

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 30.—A fire loss of between $350,000 and $400,000 was sustained at the No. 2 brick plant of the Metropolitan Brick Company, of Canton, O., located at Bessemer, Pa., seven miles west of this city. The fire originated from the explosion of a motor and short circuiting of electric wires. The fire spread rapidly and owing to the lack of fire fighting facilities, little headway could be made against the flames. Dynamite was finally used to check the flames and save part of the No. 2 plant, including the kilns. The loss is only partially covered by insurance, but indications are that the company will rebuild in the immediate future. New Castle fire equipment was sent but could do little owing to the poor water supply. Parts of the machine shop, engine room, shale shed, boiler room and several large conveyors were destroyed. Almost the entire population of Bessemer assisted in fighting the flames. The plant was a mass of blazing ruins today.

Menu for Sunday's Dinner

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Roast Duck
with Apple Stuffing.
Cranberry Jelly. Green Peas.
Gobbler Fruit Salad.
Mince Pie.
Coffee.

ROAST duck has a delightful flavor all its own, and it makes a particularly nice choice for a Sunday dinner.

To prepare a duck for roasting, a thorough singeing is necessary. Then clean it and stuff it with apple dressing. Since a duck is fat, it is better to set it on a rack in the roasting pan; rub the entire surface with salt, and spread the breast and legs with three tablespoons of butter, rubbed until creamy and mixed with two tablespoons of flour. Dredge the bottom of the pan with flour.

Place in a hot oven, and when the flour is well browned reduce the heat and then baste with ¼ cup butter melted in 2-3 cup boiling water. After this is gone, use the fat in the pan, and, if the flour is in danger of burning, add a cup of boiling water.

Allow 12 to 15 minutes a pound—and when the breast meat is tender the duck is sufficiently cooked.

I CHOSE gobbler fruit salad for you just to keep abreast of the holiday time! Use just a little imagination in the fashioning of this salad, and you'll have a handsome turkey gobbler standing before you. Place a half slice of canned pineapple on end to make the turkey's spread tail. Stand one red unpeeled apple in front of the pineapple.

Place a small section of banana (which has previously been marinated in lemon juice to prevent its turning brown) on top of the apple, to form the neck of the turkey. On this place a pitted date, and lay on top a strip of pimento to make the "comb." Surround this strictly home-made turkey with a nest of lettuce leaves, and serve with a little mayonnaise dressing.

MINCE MEAT PIE—One lb. raisins, ½ lb. currants, ½ lb. citron, ½ lb. chopped suet, 1 lb. brown sugar, 1½ cups cooked meat, ½ cup sweet cider, 1 tablespoon Blue Ribbon malt extract (plain), ¼ cup molasses, ¼ cup water, ½ tablespoon mace, ½ tablespoon allspice, ¼ tablespoon cloves, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ orange, ¼ lemon, ¾ peck apples.

Chop the fruit very fine. Add the Blue Ribbon malt extract to the molasses. Mix well. Add all the other liquids. Mix well. Combine with fruit. Add the chopped meat and suet. Add the brown sugar and spices. Stir well and place over a slow fire. Cook until soft about one hour. Bake 2 pie crusts, line pie tin with crust, turn in mince meat. Cover with top crust and bake in moderate oven, rich brown.

SALADS

SALADS comprise a most important part of a meal, and the success of your salad will depend on three factors.

The very first thing is the choice of materials. You've got to choose foods that will piquantly blend with each other, and lend each other zest and flavor.

The second thing is to have every ingredient absolutely clean. Not so long ago I ordered a salad at an exceedingly nice little restaurant, and when the salad appeared my heart failed me. The lettuce had every symptom of being unwashed, and the traces of sand and the ominous black spots made me view the rest of the ingredients with deep suspicion. I needn't tell you that I passed the salad by; but my whole dinner was spoiled. Let me urge you to be most careful about washing the salad ingredients—you simply can't be too careful about it! And after washing them, shake them dry by wrapping them in a clean, dry cloth and shaking them gently up and down.

THE third point in this trinity of correct salad making is to have every ingredient very cold. The successful cook knows that all cold dishes should be ice-cold; and that all hot dishes should be piping hot!

Here are a few specially nice salad receipes:

CARROT SALAD—Mix a cup of cooked peas, a half-cup of chopped celery and a cup of shredded raw carrots with enough mayonnaise to moisten. Arrange the salad on crisp lettuce leaves, and serve with mayonnaise. Garnish with stuffed olives, cut in slices.

HAM AND CELERY SALAD—Toss a cup of ham, diced; a cup of diced celery and a chopped green pepper lightly together. Serve on lettuce leaves with either mayonnaise or tomato dressing.

GREEN PEA AND WALNUT SALAD—Drain and chill two cups of cooked peas, mix with one cup of diced celery, half a cup of chopped walnut meats, a teaspoon of salt and enough mayonnaise to moisten. Arrange on a mound, on a bed of lettuce or watercress. Cover with mayonnaise and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

CHEESE IS NUTRITIOUS

I DON'T think any meal is quite complete, to me, unless there is cheese somewhere on the menu. It can be served as an entree, as a tidbit with the pie or the fruit-tart, or as the final course with crackers—but I do like my cheese served bountifully and frequently.

It is, of course, a highly nutritious food. It contains one-third more protein than milk, and twice as much as eggs. And it combines perfectly with bulky foods, like green vegetables or fruit. The magic little vitamines are contained in cheese, which adds decidedly to its food value.

Are you fond of Welsh rarebit? I do hope so, for I have a marvelous recipe for one; a novel recipe it is, too, for ginger ale figures prominently in it. Let me give it to you:

Melt two tablespoons of butter, add a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon mustard and one-half pound of cheese, cut very small. Stir until the cheese is soft—

Milk Cocoa

Milk Chocolate Bar

Taste a little as it comes from the tin. How creamy it is! The milk's already in it!

The purest, freshest full-cream milk is blended with the cocoa and sugar by the same secret process Daniel Peter used to make the original milk chocolate.

Blended so finely, so perfectly that no cooking is needed. You just add hot water to replace the moisture that has been removed from the milk.

So there is no flat "cooked taste" of boiled or heated milk—no unpleasant scum—no scorching.

You make Peter's Milk Cocoa right in the cup—just by adding hot water. Nothing could be easier. Yet you have a delicious, highly nutritious drink—made of the choicest, rich cocoa, fine table sugar, and the purest, freshest, full-cream milk, blended by the makers of Peter's—the original milk chocolate bar.

WITH ORDINARY COCOA YOU MUST BUY THREE THINGS SUGAR COCOA MILK

WITH PETER'S YOU NEED ONLY HOT WATER

heating over a very low flame. Now add one-half cup gingerale, then two eggs, slightly beaten, and stir until thick. Serve at once. You will be delighted with the rare consistency of this rarebit, and at its delightful taste.

RAVIOLI—Make a dough with about one and a half pounds of flour and five to six eggs. Roll out on a floured board and cut in four-inch squares. In the center of the squares put about one and a half tablespoons of pot-cheese. Fold over, so that both ends of the dough meet and press down with the fingers so that the cheese will not come out when the Ravioli is boiled. When about four quarts of water have been boiled, add the Ravioli. When it is cook', drain off the water, prepare a rich mushroom gravy, and serve in this manner: First a layer of Ravioli, then a layer of Parmesan cheese, then the gravy.

NOODLE MOUSSE—Boil a large cup of noodles in salted water until tender, drain and put in a buttered dish. Make a sauce as follows: Pour one and a half cup scalded milk over a cup of fresh bread crumbs, add one-quarter cup melted butter, a half cup of grated American cheese, a tablespoon of minced onion, half teaspoon of salt and a quarter teaspoon pepper. Stir in two eggs, well beaten. Add a cup minced boiled ham. Pour this sauce over the noodles, set all in a shallow dish of boiling water and bake three-quarters of an hour in a hot oven. Turn out on a platter and garnish with parsley.

FRUIT PUDDING—Cover the contents of a box of soda crackers with a cup of milk, allowing them to absorb it. Meanwhile beat together six eggs, a cup of sugar and two teaspoons of cinnamon. To that mixture add a half cup almonds, blanched and chopped, the grated rind of a lemon, a cup of seeded raisins, two grated tart apples. Mash the crackers and add them gradually, beating until very light. Melt a cup of butter in the baking dish and pour in the pudding. Bake in a moderately hot oven one and one-quarter hours. Serve with fruit or prune sauce.

LEMON BREAD PUDDING—Melt butter, the size of a walnut, in three cups of scalded milk. Add two large tablespoons sugar mixed with three well beaten egg yolks, a pinch of salt and the grated rind of a lemon. Pour over one and one-half cups of fresh bread flakes, measured lightly. Put in a baking dish, and bake in a pan with water in it, to prevent curdling. When the pudding is set, cover with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs, a cup of powdered sugar and the juice of a lemon. Return to the oven and brown slowly.

HICKORY NUT MINCE PIE—To a pint of hickory nut meats, chopped fine, add 2 teaspoons of salt, a quarter teaspoon of pepper, a heaping teaspoon of cinnamon, a scant teaspoon of ground cloves, a medium sized nutmeg grated, a cup of chopped seeded raisins, 2 ounces of shredded candied citron. Stir all together, add 2 pints of chopped sour apples, 2 cups of light brown sugar, 1 cup of granulated sugar, 2 cups of boiling water with a teaspoon of extract of beef dissolved in it and a piece of butter the size of a hickory nut. Pour this on the mixture and stir, lastly adding 2 large spoonsful of good cooking molasses. Put in a preserving kettle, stir thoroughly and cook for about 30 minutes.

HUNGARIAN GOULASH—Brown three large sliced onions in three tablespoons of fat, add a pound of lean beef and one pound of lean veal, cut in comparatively large slices. Next add a teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of sweet paprika; cook very slowly until half done. Then add four medium-sized potatoes, diced, cover with cold water, and cook till tender.

CHILE CON CARNE—Cut a pound and a half of beef in small pieces and cook in just water enough to cover, until very tender. Render a small piece of beef suet and in the fat fry two good sized onions, chopped fine and a button of garlic. Pour into the cooked meat then add two large chile peppers or a small teaspoon of cayenne pepper, salt to taste, and a cup of puree of tomatoes. Cook for one hour and serve with stewed kidney beans.

POT ROAST—Take four pounds beef from round or rump in one solid piece. Melt a little suet or fat in a skillet, put in meat and brown well on both sides. Remove meat to kettle or iron pot and cover with boiling water. Add fat from skillet, one small can tomatoes, two bay leaves, three or four whole cloves, one turnip cut fine, two carrots, two onions cut fine, juice of one-half lemon, two tablespoons vinegar, two pieces celery cut fine, salt and pepper to taste.

Cook slowly. Do not add more water unless absolutely necessary, as the gravy must be cooked down well. Remove the meat when done and thicken the gravy with one teaspoon cornstarch mixed to a paste with water.

ORANGE TEA—One cup water, 2 cups tea, ½ cup sugar, slice of orange, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 cups orange juice, grated rind 1 orange.

Boil sugar, water and orange rind for five minutes. Chill. Add fruit juices and tea. Place in refrigerator to chill thoroughly. To serve place two orange colored ice cubes in each tall glass and pour over them the chilled liquid. Garnish with a slice of orange

STEWED SQUASH—The Italians add a clove of garlic when cooking squash, which adds to its flavor, but if you are afraid of garlic, leave it out. Either the white or green squash may be used. Wash well and cut up small, skin and all. Saute a minced clove of garlic in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Add four cups of squash and one-quarter cup of water, and allow to simmer, stirring occasionally, until tender. Season with salt and pepper, and serve. Squash is very watery, so you must not add too much water. It shrinks a good deal while cooking — so don't be too stingy with it, 'cause it's good enough to demand a second helping.

BAKED SQUASH—Fill a buttered baking dish with layers of squash, sprinkled with salt and dotted with butter. Blend a teaspoonful of flour with half a cup of milk and pour over the dish. Sprinkle the top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in the oven until the squash is tender—about 40 minutes.

Strips of bacon laid across the top of the baking dish will add a delightful flavor.

Later on the deep yellow winter squash will come into season, the kind you have to break with a hammer. But, my! how good it can be steamed, and the yellow center scooped out and served with plenty of butter and pepper and salt. Did you ever eat squash pies? But I am rushing the season. For the present we may be well content with summer squash.

FRUIT SALAD—Wash and peel ½ pound of Malaga grapes, 1 grapefruit, 1 orange, 2 pears, 3 bananas. Cut grapes in halves and remove the seeds. Cut grapefruit and orange into sections and dice bananas and pears. Pour the juice of 1 lime and ½ cup of strained honey over the fruit which has been mixed together. Allow to stand on ice. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves topped with whipped cream.

* * *

MEAT LOAF—Mix 1 pound of lean beef and veal, ground, 1 cup of bread crumbs, 1 chopped green pepper, 2 eggs, 1 cup of milk, 1 teaspoonful of salt and ½ teaspoon each of pepper and paprika. Line a baking pan with strips of bacon. Fill with the meat mixture. Lay strips of bacon over the top. Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes. Turn upside down on a large platter and garnish with parsley.

Madge Is Thrilled When Carroll Takes Her for A Plane Ride

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayre, young and pretty, awakens on the morning of her twenty-first birthday resenting the dingy New York apartment she shares with her father, an unsuccessful inventor. Madge craves thrills and unexpectedly finds one when she attends a party given by her friend, Frances Storrs. It is in the person of Carroll Dudley, handsome artist, aviator and "man about town." Carroll is impressed with Madge's youthful beauty and tells her he had been waiting to meet her all his life. Meanwhile the party becomes wilder and Carroll and Madge retire to a balcony, escaping the heightening orgy. Carroll offers to drive Madge to his place on Long Island, proposing an airplane ride for a thrill. Leaving the party they stop at Madge's house when a taxi pulls up. Friends are lifting out the almost unconscious Mr. Sayre, a victim of alcohol.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THE larger part of the duplex apartment was taken up by the studio itself, a huge, Gothic room with a balcony running around three sides of it, which gave on to the bedroom. Though the paraphernalia of Carroll's art was in evidence, the room was so vast that there was plenty of space for soft-cushioned divans and big armchairs, while two mediaeval stone fireplaces were, in the summer, banked high with flowers and ferns. There was a riot of color in the studio, but old gold and Mediterranean blue predominated.

"Do you like it?" Carroll asked with an amused smile.

"It's too perfect to be true!" Madge replied. "But I want to see your pictures. Oh!" she exclaimed, looking down at herself in her little black crepe de chine dress, "I forgot about changing—and if we're going to fly afterwards—"

"As if I wouldn't think for you!" Carroll indicated a large box that lay on a beautifully carved Italian marriage chest.

On opening the cardboard box, labeled with the name of a fashionable sporting goods store, Madge discovered a little flying suit, the coat made of soft black leather and the breeches of dazzling white cord. There was a close-fitting black leather helmet and boots, too, of the softest Russian kid.

"I thought this more fitting than the customary hideous khaki!" Carroll told her. "I bribed your maid—and you never knew it—to find out the exact size. The boots may be a little large, but I wanted you to feel suitably dressed the first time you dared the gods of the air."

"Dinner is served, sir," the ubiquitous Hardy announced as he offered cocktails on a silver salver.

Carroll showed the way out on to a balcony, big enough to accommodate a table and chairs, and over which a striped awning formed a roof. Below them the lights of the automobiles glimmered like fireflies in the park, and the whole scene was fairy-like in its almost unreal beauty. A blue-black sky made a backdrop, and Madge's eyes were shining with enthusiasm as she turned to Carroll.

"What beauty!" she cried. "What beauty!"

"I worship beauty," he returned quietly, "and I paint it when I see it. Oh, not the horrible canvases by which I make my modest living. That is to laugh! And if you could see the hideous old frumps who pay me five thousand dollars for a portrait! But I paint beauty. Ecstasy, when and where I can find it to save my artistic soul alive without thought of money. Which rather brings me to a request I have to make of you."

"What is?" she asked.

Hardy approached the table with cold consomme, into which the cook had dropped a glass of old sherry.

"We will talk of it later," Carroll murmured. "Champagne, Hardy."

Carroll had taken pains that his dinner should be worthy of such a setting, and of such a guest, so Madge found herself served later with such delicacies as prawns in aspic, cold grouse, a crisply bittersweet salad. And, guessing her sweet tooth, Carroll had thoughtfully ordered a strawberry mousse.

"The request I was going to make," he said later, seated behind the wheel of his car, while they were nearing the flying field, "was that you would pose for me. Will you, Madge? May I not attempt to portray the curves and loveliness, the dimples and the flesh-tints that only an artist could properly value?"

"I don't know," Madge evaded, "I—I don't quite know."

"I would make you exquisite," he returned in a purposely natural voice. "After all, you want to help Art, don't you?"

"But how could I?" she queried.

"By not holding back all the loveliness that is yours," he answered. "After all, Ecstasy, there is little enough beauty in this gray old world of ours. But think it over."

Their arrival at the hangar that stood on the edge of a big field saved Madge the need of replying. She had already changed into her flying costume in one of the bedrooms at the studio, and she looked very trim and eminently lovely as, with little excited gasps of pleasure, she began to examine the plane.

Carroll gave a few brisk and extremely technical orders to the two mechanics who were in attendance. Then he turned to Madge.

"You're not going to be frightened, are you? I promise you not to do any stunts the first time, and you needn't have a qualm unless you hear the engine stop. Even then I can come down safely. So there's nothing for you to worry about."

"As if I'm afraid!" Madge cried gaily as she permitted him to help her into the rear cockpit.

Then, amid the roar of the exhaust, the plane taxied smoothly over the field, and in a moment it seemed to her that Long Island was retreating from them.

Up and up they climbed in huge spirals—like a giant corkscrew, Madge decided, with a delicious little chill running up and down her spine.

Higher and ever higher they climbed, throbbing steadily toward a pendant puff of clouds, soft as a bed of swansdown, moon-charged with live silver. The noise of the engine made conversation impossible, though Madge was longing to shout out her rapturous pleasure to Carroll.

Suddenly the engine choked . . . sputtered . . . was silent . . . roared for a spasmodic second . . . and then died completely.

For an eternal moment they hung there . . . suspended, it seemed to the startled girl, between earth and sky.

Then Madge knew that, with sickening rapidity, they were plunging down . . . and down . . .

Carroll shouted something, but Madge did not grasp the meaning of his words. All she knew was that they seemed to be falling at a sickening speed.

She tried to cry out, but it was as though her throat were frozen. All this passed in a brief second of time, as time is measured by a clock, but for Madge it was an eternity. It was like a nightmare in its horror. Down . . . Down

CHAPTER IV.

AS the plane plunged downward, Carroll called out again, but again Madge did not grasp what he was saying. And so it went for her, crashing from sky to earth in a period of time that was set aside from the rest of her life, a time when all thought was paralyzed except for the knowledge that they were crashing down and down, and that she was cold with fear.

And in that nothingness came sudden vibration, sudden noise, and the hideous clamor of the engine was the sweetest music Madge had ever heard.

The engine roared, spluttered and roared even louder, and this was followed by the steady pulsation of noise that told even the inexperienced Madge that it was functioning again.

Instantly, her fear gave way to a feeling of exultation. She was even glad that it had happened, as the blood seemed to course again in her veins, and she had had another experience, another thrill.

Why, this was life. The near encounter with death had made life even more intoxicating, and instantly the horror of fear that had been hers only a moment before left Madge's memory.

Now she was supremely happy, and she was sorry when she noticed that Carroll had swung around and was skilfully maneuvering back towards the field from which he had taken off.

"Go on. Oh, fly some more!" Madge shouted uselessly against the thunder of the exhaust.

Naturally, Carroll did not hear her. His own nerves were distinctly strained from the experience, and it was with an inward sigh of relief that he felt the wheels of the landing gear touch the ground. He taxied smoothly to within a short distance of the hangar.

"Oh!" cried Madge, as at last the plane was completely still. "Let's go up again!"

But Carroll was holding out both hands to her to help her to alight.

"You weren't frightened?" he asked as she leaped down beside him.

Madge laughed. "I was—but it was lovely!" she assured him.

"Ecstacy. Oh, what a girl!" he smiled down on her. "She was frightened but it was lovely. I hand it to you for nerve. I should have thought you'd have fainted."

"I was terribly frightened for the time," Madge admitted honestly. "But then—why, it was over, and fear became a thrill!"

He laughed at her. "Do you realize that is an epigram? 'It was over, and fear became a thrill!' I like that very much. You want to make your life a thrill, don't you?"

They were walking towards the hangar from which the mechanics were hurrying to meet them.

"I wish I could," she answered gleefully.

"CROSS my palm, lady fair, and I shall tell you the deep dark secrets of the future!" Thus coaxes Dan Cupid and who can resist his appeal!

"Ah! I see here many things! I see a man. You'll meet him before long—a stranger! But be careful for he's a thief! He'll steal away your heart and rob you of your kisses. But be not afraid, for in return he will leave his heart where you may claim it! I see a misty veil floating round your head and soft music and the sweet scent of many flowers and many people around you! Ah, you're a bride! And I see days and days of happiness, filled with dreams and longings and fears for your loved one. Yes, I say your Loved One for you will fall so terribly in love!"

What a soothsayer this small person is! And how happy he makes the hearts of all come seeking his aid! For Cupid never fails. He always tells you the very things you are longing to hear, so when you're in doubt, pay a visit to Dan and—then watch and wait.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

"Bargain Marriages"

THE marriage-market, like Wall Street, seems to be full of bulls and bears, these days—those bent on buying and those bent on selling.

* * *

The only question in a modern girl's mind appears to be whether she'd rather be fascinating enough to get a rich husband, or rich enough to buy a fascinating one.

Whether to stick to dermatology and beauty culture, spend her money on silk stockings, go into the chorus and find a man who is willing to be her angel, banker and cash register. Or to stick to business, save her pennies and some day find an attractive young man who is willing to be bought and paid for and will squander her dollars.

HELEN ROWLAND

All the rich men are marrying check-room cuties, telephone sirens, beautiful shopgirls, chorines and bathing beauty prize winners.

And all the rich women are taking gigolos "to raise" or marrying their sons' college mates and fraternity brothers.

The odds are sort of even, whether a girl decides to be a rich man's house pet or a poor man's checkbook.

About a year seems to be as long as any of these "bargain marriages" ever last, and two weeks is their average life. Lots of them expire two days after the wedding from sheer nausea or anemia.

The girl who marries a man purely for the love of his checkbook soon finds that he is either the kind who bores her to death or the kind who bosses her to death, and wants to order everything around the house, from the meal hours to her hats and the brand of her tooth powder.

Or else he is the kind who insists on keeping separate automobiles so that he and his wife can travel separate roads; who changes his heart every time he changes to his dinner coat, and to whom "life" is just one pair of dimpled knees after another.

On the other hand, these young "bought and paid for" husbands are nearly always the kind that will never "stay put." After a few weeks of luxurious idleness they tire of the "bargain" and begin to look upon the woman's kisses as an income tax. They are not willing to give even a little imitation devotion in return for their board and clothes and cigarets. Their eyes may be upon the dollars—but they keep wandering to the flappers.

Happy the girl who is wise enough to look upon marriage as a partnership, and not as a get-rich-quick scheme, and who picks a hard-working boy, with whom she can work and play and struggle up the hill to success.

* * *

Nobody EVER got a "bargain" in marriage—because marriage is not a BARGAIN! It's a quid-pro-quo proposition!

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Sees Veritzen's Hand in a Delicate Situation

I STARED at my mother-in-law in delighted surprise as she calmly told me that she and my father had planned every detail about taking care of Junior while I should be at work in the city. It was such a relief to find this particular phase of my problem already settled so satisfactorily, that for a moment I had not words in which to express my astonished appreciation.

But I knew that I must find words, and that speedily. My mother-in-law does not in the least resemble the modest violet—she is far more akin to the hollyhock, and she likes to make sure that she receives full credit for her frequent kindly impulses. With an excited little laugh—the only comment I was able to make in that first moment of surprise, I leaned forward in my chair, and looked steadily at her.

"How perfectly astonishing—and wonderful!" I exclaimed at last, and my father flashed a half mirthful but wholly comprehending and approving smile at me. "You must possess clairvoyance!"

"No, only common sense," my mother-in-law retorted, patently enjoying herself. "It's always been one of my principles that a person having a job should stick to it until it's done. I don't mind telling you that you've succeeded in yours beyond any expectations of mine—Mr. Veritzen was telling me only the other day that he never had seen any one who brought so rare a combination of quickness of perception, sureness of judgment and resourcefulness to a task as you did. I'm quoting him exactly and of course I made allowance for that high-falutin' language of his—the man can't talk unless he imagines he's on a stage acting a part and rolling out fine speeches. But I could see that he thought the world of—your work."

Dicky's mother stopped abruptly after the two words following her significant pause and looked at me steadily with her gray eyes, still keen despite her years. But I gave no inkling that I had caught any other possible meaning than the one she had uttered aloud. My father's quick frown as speedily banished, told me that he had noticed her hesitation and shared my wonder as to whether it was an intentional slip, designed to test my reaction to my employer's praise.

"He was worried over two things when he last talked to me," my mother-in-law went on, "first that you might break down, and second, that some one of the family might get ill and need you. He said that was the only trouble with you, that you had a divided allegiance. I told him that you were strong as an ox, and that if any of the rest of the family got sick it was a pity that somebody else besides you couldn't take charge of things, especially as we've got the best trained nurse in the world right in the family. He felt better after that, especially when I told him that I'd see you kept on your job. But when Richard Second fell out of that tree, I felt for a little while as if it were a judgment on me for promising Mr. Veritzen that."

Oh! clever, clever Philip Veritzen! Unerringly he had chosen for his blandishments the one person who could help or hinder him in his purpose of making more secure the ties which bound me to my contract of work with him. And Mother Graham had slipped into the spider's web as confidingly as ever did the most naive fly.

"But, of course, now that we're sure the boy is no worse for the shock, and it's only a question of his being kept out there, I'm all over that foolish feeling. So I asked your father if he'd give me house room this winter. That ape of a Katie surely needs somebody to see that she doesn't turn the house into a movie theater with herself as the star, and while, of course, Mrs. Bickett will take care of Richard Second beautifully, it won't do her or anybody else any hurt to know that his old Granzie is where she can keep an eye on things."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Infant Feeding a Problem for Mothers

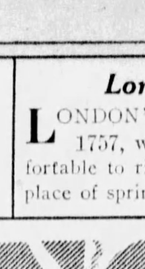
INFANT feeding is no easy task. Of course, I am speaking about the bottle-fed baby. If the mother is healthy and is blessed with an abundant flow of breast milk, there will be no particular difficulty about feeding the baby.



DR. COPELAND

We are faced by an entirely different proposition, however, when the infant must be fed from the bottle. Cow's milk is quite different in its chemical and physical properties from mother's milk. It has to be "modified" to make it suitable for the human baby.

In order that an infant may thrive, three things which must be borne in mind in providing its food. In the first place, the food must contain certain elements. These elements are essential if the child is to be properly nourished and is to grow as we wish it to do.

Then, of course, the mixture must be more than merely chemically fitted for the needs of the child—it must be digestible. This is the second point. In the third place, each feeding must contain exactly the right amount of food to maintain the welfare of the baby.

It is not a simple matter to modify cow's milk so that it is entirely suitable for the infant. It has a tendency to curdle and to form a tough, hard, almost leathery mass in the stomach. In this respect cow's milk is entirely different from human milk. When mother's milk curdles, it forms a soft curd, small in size and easily handled by the digestive process.

Beside this difference, which may be called a physical difference, we have a marked chemical difference between the two milks. Cow's milk contains more than three per cent of protein material, while breast milk is only one or two per cent protein. We can overcome this difference by adding water to the cow's milk and, as a matter of fact, it must be diluted before it is suitable for consumption by the baby. It may be necessary to add certainly an equal amount of water and perhaps twice as much water as there is milk.

But you see, when we dilute it enough to make the protein content correct, we have reduced the fat too much. That is the reason why we have to use top milk, the portion containing the butter fat, when we are providing a suitable artificial feeding for the baby. Likewise, when we dilute the cow's milk as much as we need to, the sugar content is low. On this account sugar must be added to the mixture.

Let me say just one more word about the tough curds which form on taking cow's milk. This difficulty can be overcome by adding a teaspoonful of high grade gelatin to the mixture. The gelatin serves to separate the particles of the milk and to prevent the formation of a hard leathery curd.

On another occasion I will speak more at length regarding infant feeding, but the suggestions given you here will be helpful, I trust.

Answers to Health Queries

M. A. R. S. Q.—What do you advise for enlarged pores?

A.—Hot and cold applications used alternately for five or 10 minutes night and morning should help to reduce enlarged pores. The excessive use of powder and cold cream will clog the pores, thus causing them to become enlarged and coarsening the grain of the skin.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Thank Him

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When a gentleman has taken you out, is it correct to thank him upon leaving?

2. Is it your place to invite him to call, or should you wait until you have been out with him more than once?

3. When one is just beginning to go out, just what to do is so puzzling. But if one does some little thing wrong, do you think one would be judged not a lady?

L. W.

1, Yes, most enthusiastically, yes. You see, it is all very reasonable. A person—it makes no difference whether it is a lady or a gentleman, has had a generous and friendly plan for your entertainment, your happiness. It is most natural—that, if you have a sense of appreciation, you will feel the urge to express your thanks for this pleasant thoughtfulness. "Obey that impulse," and thank the gentleman and say what a delightful time you have had. That is, at least, thank him, and, if you have had a delightful time, say so.

Now that you are just beginning to step out into the wide, wide world, to accept the hospitality of kind friends, train yourself to express your thanks. The people who, smugly and self-satisfiedly, keep this most beautiful of expressions where no one ever knows or hears anything about it, never can be rated as gracious, well-bred.

2. I am sure that you are perspicacious enough to determine after you have been out with this gentleman once whether or not you wish to include him among your friends. So there is no reason why you should not invite him to come to see you then. If you accept his hospitality, you should extend the hospitality of your home to him.

3. Quite right you are L. W. "This world is so full of a number of things" that test and reveal one's sense of manners that to be mannerly means eternal vigilance. Of course you would not be condemned as ill-bred if you do some little thing not quite in the right way. The great thing is to profit by each mistake you make, and soon you will find that the spirit of you has grown from the inside out, and that your sense of what's what will grow and blossom into the lovely flower of courtesy. Try to figure out what under the circumstances is the natural thing to do, the reasonable thing, the gracious thing. Develop the spirit behind your manners, and your manners will take care of themselves.

Who Goes First?

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If two couples go to a moving picture house, should the two girls go in the row first? How should they sit—together, or should they leave a seat between them for one of the boys? As they leave the row, should the boys go first or the girls? Or do they leave just as they are sitting?

S. E. G.

IT its easier and simpler if one girl goes to the row first and a boy goes next; then the second girl, and last the second boy. The first boy, before he enters the row, should ask permission of the second girl, "Shall I go in next?"

As they leave the row they proceed as they were sitting. In the aisle the two boys stand back a bit and let the girls precede them up the aisle.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

THREE Congressmen have promised Councilman W. Y. English that they will appear before the Federal Radio Commission on December 7 to voice their disapproval of the present wavelength status in Pittsburgh. These men are Guy E. Campbell, Harry A. Estep and M. Clyde Kelly. It is believed that many other Congressmen will join in the fight to restore WCAE to its old wavelength of 461.3 meters or to give it a better location on the broadcast band.

Councilman English has not spared a moment since he was appointed a committee of one to investigate complaints appearing daily in the Sun-Telegraph. He satisfied himself that the listeners had a right to complain and forthwith wrote a letter to all congressmen in Allegheny county asking them to lend their aid.

He explained the whole situation in one paragraph: "The principal trouble in Pittsburgh is that Station WCAE has been moved from the middle of the dial down to a point between KDKA and WJAS. This makes it hard for most radio sets to tune in clearly. We believe further study of the matter by the engineers will induce them to change the position of WCAE."

President James Malone, of City Council, authorized Mr. English to appear before the commission in behalf of the City of Pittsburgh.

The first official statement from WCAE came into this office yesterday. Mrs. Frances Doherr, manager of the station, admitted that the station had received thousands of complaints from listeners in all parts of the tri-state territory. She confirmed the earlier report printed in the Sun-Telegraph that officials of the station would "make a staunch fight for a new location on the wavelengths if reception is not improved by December 7."

The typewritten statement contained the following information:

"Among persons who will be present at the hearing as witnesses for WCAE will be Al Machesney, chief engineer; Louis Caplan, attorney for Gimbel's; Rev. H. P. Eckhardt, of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church; radio editors of Pittsburgh newspapers.

"From letters now on hand, the majority of complaints seem to be coming in from Beaver Valley proper, Pittsburgh running a close second and Northern West Virginia a third. Also many of the outlying smaller towns, including Wall, Yatesboro, Russeltown, Starford, Butler, Emlenton, Emleigh, Homer City, Barnesboro, Brooksville, Smithton, Sligo, Pricedale, Empire and others up to Erie.

"In all of these missives—thousands of them—the main essence is that the sender cannot tune in on Station WCAE because of the interference caused by stations reallocated too closely in the recent change made by the Federal Radio Commission. The majority suggest that WCAE be reassigned to a position further up on the dial."

Letters continue to flow into the Sun-Telegraph office. They are mostly complaints, some written by very angry fans. James D. Thomas, a radiotrician of Waynesburg, Pa., was among complainants yesterday.

"Interference is bad and we cannot tune in anyone but KDKA loud enough for the speaker," he wrote. "People want to know what's wrong. We think WCAE should be returned to the old wavelength or at least some place higher up on the band. We could get 500 names to this letter if we desired and would only be too glad to do so if it would help WCAE in their appeal."

Letters sent the Sun-Telegraph will be presented as evidence at the hearing before the Radio Commission. They should be addressed to the Radio Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Mark "Special" in the lower left corner.

Features scheduled at Pittsburgh and out of town stations today.

Mary and Bob, having made a special trip in order to be home for Thanksgiving, will remain in New York for several days, and it is from that city that they will broadcast tonight.

Mary and Bob will attend the rehearsal of a musical comedy. What they see and hear at this play will constitute the first half of their broadcast.

The second half of the True Story hour will be taken up with the story of a modern Pandora, the tale of a wife, who, although dying of curiosity, is not permitted by her husband to open a little black box which he possesses. At his death she opens it, and what she finds there is the climax of the tale that Mary and Bob will disclose.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Debs Await Cotillion Bids

THE young bud of this season awaits an invitation to that most exclusive of all social functions among the younger set—the Tuesday cotillion—with a heart beating as yearningly as did that of her great-great-great-grandmother. Ever since the beginning of society in this country in the stately Colonial period, cotillion clubs have been traditional. And many of the members of the clubs of the olden cities are descendants of those who danced the first figures on this continent. Down South cotillions have long been famous, and Pittsburgh, like other cities of the North, now has its cotillion tradition, too.

In spite of debuts and innumerable entertainments buds never feel they've quite "blossomed out" until they receive an invitation to the cotillion. In the far-off days of Charles X of France, when the cotillion was first inaugurated by royalty, the older set predominated. In Pittsburgh it has become traditional to regard the cotillions primarily as the outstanding social events of the young people. As the members marry and their children grow up, they tend to drop out of active participation, and allow their sons and daughters to represent them.

THIS year there'll be only one cotillion in the Pittsburgh Club, the dignified scene of many a social function for several generations. The date set is Tuesday, December 18. Last year there were two, one in December and one shortly after New Year's. Not so many years ago, don't you recall, the tradition was four cotillions a year?

James Verner Scaife, Jr., Richard King Mellon, Moorhead Holland, John H. Ricketson, III, and William Christopher Robinson, Jr., from the cotillion committee this year. James Verner Scaife, Jr., last year became a member of the committee for the first time, replacing his brother, Alan Magee Scaife, upon his marriage to Sarah Mellon, daughter of the Richard B. Mellons, a year ago this month. And Mr. Ricketson was also a committee member for the first time last year, taking the place of B. F. Jones, III, when he married Katherine Holdship. William Christopher Robinson, Jr., I believe, is making "his bow" as a cotillion committee member.

By the way many of the parents of those who will be seen at the cotillion danced the same figures 25 or 30 years ago when George S. Oliver and A. Marshall Bell were always seen leading. And in those days the cotillion and New Year's Eve were synonomous.

THANKSGIVING EVE, like the eves of all holidays, is always a time for entertainments. One of them was given by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Norton Van Voorhis, who entertained 100 young people at the Nixon Theater, and later at a supper in the Pittsburgh Club. The guests of honor were two Sewickley debutantes, Virginia Willock, daughter of the F. S. Willocks, and Margaret Holdship, daughter of the Charles F. Holdships.

THE second coming-out party of the week was held today, when Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, of Morewood avenue, entertained with a reception in her home to introduce her daughter, Clara Dorothea.

The guests were received in the library, before an embankment of ferns, and the debutante's gift baskets were placed against an effective background of the tapestries on the wall. Huge clusters of pink roses were used to match the rose hangings in the French drawing room, while in the dining room, yellow chrysanthemums formed the decorations. Tea was served in the dining room and the sun parlors, which were transformed into Japanese gardens, the marble pillars festooned with wistaria.

Receiving with Mrs. Jenkins and Dorothea were Mrs. Alfred Elliott Jenkins and Dorothea's sister, Elizabeth. Dorothea wore a gown of orange transparent velvet with a wide bertha of gold lace and Mrs. Jenkins appeared in nut brown transparent velvet trimmed with Princess lace. Mrs. Alfred Jenkins' frock was of black chiffon velvet, while Elizabeth wore fuchsia transparent velvet, made with a tiered skirt.

THE Thanksgiving Day debutante was Oliveretta Sutton, you know, and she made her bow at a tea-dance which her mother, Mrs. Stansbury Sutton, of the Alder Court Apartments, gave in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Mrs. Sutton and her daughter received their guests in the sun room of the club. Oliveretta wearing a frock of Independence blue chiffon and carrying, during the course of the afternoon, several of her gift bouquets. Mrs. Sutton was gowned in blue lace.

Autumn flowers and greens were used in decorating the ballroom and the buffet table in the dining room had a centerpiece of fruit and flowers. Another tea table had a decoration of hothouse fruit and yellow chrysanthemums.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement of Miss Julia Belford Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Belford Anderson and the late Maj. Anderson, of Latrobe, to James Atwood Dullea, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Dullea, of Masseria, N. Y.

EVENTS planned for December at the Pittsburgh Country Club include a bridge luncheon for women members December 11 and special dinners December 6 and 13, in addition to the Saturday and Thursday night dinner dances. There will be a New Year's Eve dinner dance December 31.

Melvin wrote his wife, Laura: "This is the best way" and that he loved Mrs. Fussner.

Melvin had three children and Mrs. Fussner had one.

BOY, 5, DIES IN W. VA. BLAZE

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Fire believed to have started when flames from an open gas jet ignited tissue paper Thanksgiving decorations caused the death of Lonnie Griffith, aged 5, here yesterday. Four other persons escaped with slight burns.

The Griffith boy was asleep in a crib and his mother, Lillian Griffith, 18, after carrying a younger child to safety, was unable to penetrate the flames to save him.

An uncle, James Thompson, and his daughter, Ellen, 12, escaped. The home was destroyed.

For Pittsburghers By Pittsburghers

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH is a Pittsburgh newspaper, published for Pittsburghers by Pittsburgh people. ¶ We who write its news columns, who are members of its advertising staff, who see it through its many and complicated mechanical developments, who feed and care for the giant presses that print 360,000 eight-page newspapers an hour—we are Pittsburghers—proud of our newspaper—proud of the part we are playing to make it the kind of a newspaper Pittsburghers want to read.

Our Publisher is a Pittsburgher. His rise from cub reporter to his present position has been realized, almost in its entirety, on Pittsburgh newspapers alone. He knows what Pittsburgh people demand in the newspaper they read. Under his guidance, the Sun-Telegraph meets their requirements.

Our managing editor is a Pittsburgher. Twenty-three years of newspaper service in this city places him in an enviable position to do his job well. He, too, knows Pittsburgh and Pittsburgh knows him.

In the circulation department we find men whose years of service with this newspaper range from four to twenty-five years. Of approximately one hundred men who comprise this branch of the Sun-Telegraph family, nine have been employed over twenty years and thirty-four over ten years.

In the engraving department, composed of fourteen men, all but three were born in Pittsburgh, and two of those who were not, have made our city their home for many years. And every man in this department has a long record of service to his credit.

Seventeen printers in our composing room have each served their newspaper for more than twenty-eight years. One of them is eighty-one years old, a Civil War veteran and a native of Pittsburgh. Two others have passed the seventy mark. The composing room, like every other department, is "Pittsburgh" through and through.

Sixty-seven men are required to operate our giant presses. Every one of them is a Pittsburgher, born in this city or its environs. Nineteen of them have been in the employ of the Sun-Telegraph or its predecessors for over twenty years and thirteen for more than ten years.

In the stereotyping department, every man has a service record of five or more years and all but two are native sons.

Pittsburghers, who gather the news of the day and write it in an accurate and interesting manner, such as is only possible through a thorough knowledge of their city and those who live in it, make up the Sun-Telegraph news and editorial staff. Contrary to the conditions that exist on most metropolitan newspapers, the members of the news and editorial staff are Pittsburghers by a great majority. Our city editor has twenty-seven years of service to his credit and many others in this department: reporters, rewrite men, sports writers, have served the newspaper readers of Pittsburgh for nearly as many or more years than he.

The advertising department, too, is composed of Pittsburgh men. Seven members of the staff have been identified with our organization for more than twenty years. Practically every member of the staff is "native born." Knowing Pittsburgh and knowing advertising, the SUN-TELEGRAPH advertising staff is well equipped to best serve those who profit through the columns of our newspaper.

We who are members of the SUN-TELEGRAPH family, seven hundred and thirty in number, are Pittsburghers. We are substantial citizens, proud of our city and proud of the part our newspaper is playing in making it a better city. Of one hundred and sixty of us who were interviewed, ninety-two own our own homes or are buying them.

Most of us have families. Our pay checks support 3,020 people. We are prosperous, modern, well-living citizens.

Being Pittsburghers, we should know what you other Pittsburghers want to read. We should know what you expect and require from the newspaper that goes into your homes. And we are positive in our belief that the PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, our newspaper and your newspaper, meets your requirements and is winning your constantly increasing approval.

Toby Uansa, Pitt Halfback—and His 100-Yard Return—of Kickoff for Touchdown

HEROIC FIGURE

Toby Uansa, McKees Rocks High School graduate, who gave the early comers at the stadium yesterday a thrill they will not soon forget when he caught Penn State's opening kickoff on the goal line and raced along the left sideline the length of the field for a touchdown. The run was reminiscent of Gibby Welch's 105-yard return against West Virginia and 93-yard return of Nebraska's opening boot on the same field last year.

THE THRILL THAT COMES ONCE IN A LIFETIME

A run the full length of the gridiron for a score is the dream of every backfield player. Toby Uansa, the Pitt halfback, had his dream fulfilled when he caught that Penn State opening kickoff and raced exactly 100 yards to cross the enemy's goal. Diagrammed photo above shows him at the end of his mad dash. His teammates interfered beautifully to get him out in the open and he was free for the last 80 yards, with State men chasing him frantically from behind. As this exclusive picture shows, he was in no danger of being caught. He crossed into the scoring zone running well within himself and far removed from alien hands. The play was "the kick" of the season at the stadium and settled the issue in just about 15 seconds of play. Pitt won, 26-0.

STATE BATTLE OVER IN 15 SECONDS

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

THE way they play football these days one really can't (cawn't) blame the dear old public, with one eye on Wall Street and the other on its pocketbook, for kicking about the more or less high price of pasteboards. Take, for instance, that annual Thanksgiving Day classic between Pitt and Penn State at the Stadium yesterday, which Pitt won, 26-0.

It was all over in about 15 seconds and almost half of the crowd missed it. The first of those 15 seconds was devoted to the formality of a kickoff and the last 13 1-2 or 14 to a run the length of what is known as the gridiron and a little twisting and turning at the start and finish of the scamper by Toby Uansa, as he ran back that boot exactly 100 yards, straight running, and about 10 yards additional for detours for the first of four touchdowns for the home boys.

With only 59 minutes and 45 seconds remaining to play of the 60 minutes allotted the spectators for parking on the seats, the score was 6 to 0, and there was nothing for the teams to do but go through the motions the remainder of the route with the specators wearing bored expressions and wondering how the Oregon Aggies were rolling up those touchdowns against N. Y. U., over at the Yankee Stadium in New York, as noted on the scoreboard.

COLORLESS CONTEST

The contest was about as exciting as the customary Pitt-Penn State game has come to be and one had his choice of remaining there or going hence. Pitt was sluggish after that whizzing start and contented itself with scoring a touchdown per quarter and missing the last two goals. A lot of second-stringers got a chance to break in for each side. State's offense simply wasn't, and it tallied only three first downs, all on forward passes by Joe Miller, of Wilkinsburg, two in the third quarter and one in the fourth. Meanwhile Pitt chiseled out nine first downs in the first half and played around with its set head and picked up only two more first and tens in each of the last two periods for a total of 13. Miller was the only bird on the Penn State team to show any life offensively. He ran the ball well and passed nicely on the run, although badly rushed at times.

Fullback Tom Parkinson did some swell yeoman service for Pitt, bucking the ball most of the way for the second touchdown on a 39-yard march, while Uansa turned in 46-yard run around right end for the third tally to lay down alongside his 100-yard return of the opening kickoff. Franklin (Monaca) Hood punched over the final tally with new blood in the lineup.

The closest State got to the Pitt goal was to the 22-yard line on a forward passing spasm in the third quarter and in the fourth quarter it got as close as the 31 on a similar profligate splurge. In the first half it didn't do that well. The closest it got to the Pitt goal in the first period was to its own 38-yard line and in the second period it fell four yards short of that mark. That's powerful driving for you.

As mentioned before, it was just one of those ho-hum games, with State's main trouble appearing to be an inferiority complex which made it resort to a defensive game from the start. If its offense had measured anywhere near up to its defense, it might have been a ball game for a' that. If——

THAT N. Y. U. UPSET

Now N. Y. U., and its goal post raiders know how Carnegie Tech and its rooters felt along about 5 o'clock last Saturday afternoon, when the Tartans' championship hopes lay buried under a 27-13 defeat by the Violets at Forbes Field.

For N. Y. U., still celebrating that occasion, yesterday was snowed under by the Oregon Aggies, 25-13, in its own back yard, the Yankee Stadium.

(You Tech freshmen in the rear of the hall will please refrain from laughing out loud. It really isn't polite.)

Well, anyway, Tech now finishes the season with a better record than N. Y. U., which also lost to Georgetown, which, in turn, was beaten by Tech, whose only defeat was that Strong-arm (Joke) jolt from N. Y. U.

How shall we account for N. Y. U.'s defeat? Is this upset the answer to what happened to Tech? Was N. Y. U., up in the clouds after winning from Tech and unable to adjust itself mentally for the meeting with what looked like a setup in the Oregon Aggies, who were played to a tie by Tech on the Coast last fall? Was Tech below par for N. Y. U., after slaughtering Notre Dame the week before?

Is it the old story of a team being unable to remain keyed up from one important game to another?

LASSMAN IS MISSED

Or is the answer to be found in the absence of Capt. Al. Lassman, the giant tackle, from the N. Y. U.

PITT, DUQUESNE, WEST VIRGINIA COP FINALES

By JESS CARVER.

THERE'S a faded and bedraggled bunch of Violets resting a'top football's ash head today. Yea—Oregon. Rah, rah! Their hopes blighted and killed by the cold blast of an Oregon blizzard that swept over the Yankee Stadium in New York, Chick Meehan's New York University football team that thrilled the thousands by decisively spanking Carnegie Tech here last Saturday was bounced from the pale yesterday. The well night unheralded Oregon Aggies picked Chick and his Violet eleven to pieces, administering a 25-13 trimming, and right in the sacred precincts of Chick's own back yard. This upset provided a spectacular punch to football's final act.

Aside from this game, most of the contests played throughout the length and breadth of the land resulted in victories for the favored. Pitt, playing the season's finale here, walloped Penn State, 26-0, but did not play the brand of football that crushed Wash-Jeff and Syracuse and held Nebraska to a draw. At the same time, Penn State showed a snappier and tougher machine than the Lions have exhibited here for some years. State fought back every inch of the way, and made the contest a fairly interesting one.

DUKES GAIN TIE

Duquesne, finishing the year with an opportunity to gain a tie for the Conference title, grasped it and whaled Waynesburg 35-0 in a morning encounter on the Hill. Some 7,000 watched this contest and about 35,000 sat in on the doings at the Stadium in the afternoon.

The Panthers, with three of their stars making final collegiate appearances on the gridiron, jumped away to a startling lead over the Lions at the very gun. Catching the kickoff on his own goal line, Toby Uansa, the Pride of the Rocks, sprinted merrily down the field through the entire Penn State eleven for a touchdown. The cash customers were hardly settled in their seats when Toby made his spectacular dash, emulating Gib Welch's memorable run for a touchdown on the opening kickoff against Nebraska a year ago.

State recovered handily from the shock of this score and fought back tooth and nail, to say nothing of a heel or two, until the second period when Tom Parkinson plunged through the Lion line for another score.

Uansa raced 46 yards for a third tally in the third period and in the final quarter, the way was paved for Franklyn Hood to go home to Monaca without using the back way when the Pullman Porter's Curse plunged inside right tackle for a touchdown. How the boys cheered.

Much was expected of the three Panthers who were finishing their careers. Two of them came through, but by the very worst turn of luck, the third, All-America Mike Getto was severely injured on the kick-off, having his clavicle torn loose and the big star was forced to watch his final college game from the bench. Tears streamed from his eyes throughout the struggle as he was forced to sit in painful idleness. Mike deserves better breaks than that.

FOX-GUARINO STARS

But Capt. Fox and Guarino—how they played. Fox was in every play in the center of the line and half of those in the open. Guarino kept State dizzy with his end play—smashing down or turning in the Lion ball toters every time they tried his wing. Alex was generally breaking through the State line on the defense and smearing the interference before it could form. He was given able help in this job by Dimeolo.

All in all, Fox stamped himself as one of the two best guards in the East with his work yesterday. He played the best game of his career, which has been filled with many

Grant Succeeds Lassman as Captain

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Winning the intercollegiate heavyweight boxing championship apparently is a necessary qualification for election as captain of the New York University football team. Leonard Galahad Grant, newly-elected leader of the N. Y. U. eleven, and Al Lassman, 1928 captain, both have won the boxing championship.

Grant has played at left tackle for two seasons. He is a graduate of Dean Academy.

NOTRE DAME TO BE ANNUAL VISITOR

NOTRE DAME will continue to meet Carnegie Tech in football every season for the next seven years, at least, the games to be played alternately in Pittsburgh and South Bend, with four of the contests taking place in this city and the three others at the home of the Fighting Irish.

Knute Rockne

This is the pleasing outcome of the conferences between the athletic officials of the two institutions growing out of the recent schedule revision for 1929, whereby the date of the Tartan's slated encounter with Knute Rockne's eleven here next fall was changed from November 23 to October 26.

LAST week a report came out of South Bend that Notre Dame would not meet the Skibos next season, but would play them in 1930, whereupon a contract was produced by Graduate Manager Clarence Overend, of the Plaid, showing that Coach Rockne had signed for a game here on November 23, next season, in addition to this year's meeting in South Bend.

The schedule tangle that resulted from the misunderstanding was straightened out by the changing of the Tartan date to October 26 and the action of Pitt in volunteering to give up its scheduled game with the Irish for 1929 and accepting instead a new three-year agreement to begin in 1930.

IN VIEW of the fact that Carnegie's contract was to expire in 1929, and that Notre Dame had agreed to meet Pitt in 1930, 1931 and 1932, it was rumored in some quarters that Notre Dame might not continue relations with the Plaid during the period of its competition with the Panthers.

However, Manager Overend gives the assurance that everything is safe and set in that direction for a long time to come. He says that Coach Rockne was pleased to consider the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame game an annual fixture, something on the order of an institution after their six meetings up to date, and that besides agreeing to go through with next year's contest on a new date he also assured Carnegie that Notre Dame would continue to play the Schenley Park team annually for at least six more years to follow.

Alec Fox

WITH Carnegie on its schedule for the next seven seasons, and Pitt for the next three years, together with the probability that further games with both local teams will be arranged under renewed contracts, Notre Dame will appear more frequently in competition with Pittsburgh elevens than with those of any other city in the country. The new agreement with Carnegie means that Notre Dame's colorful teams will be seen in action in this city in at least six of the next seven seasons. The Irish will come here to play Carnegie in 1929, 1931, 1933 and 1935, and will visit the city to meet Pitt in 1930

By TOM BIRKS.

With the greatest crowds of the season on hand, the playing of the Western Pennsylvania cup ties was a big success. Turkey Day saw Heidelberg swinging into cup tie form by traveling to the Homewood playgrounds and stopping the Pittsburgh Soccer Club, 5 to 0.

The Union Switch and Signal eleven ran into a snag at Dunlevy, the Monongahela boys winning by a 3-goals-to-1 score, proving that Dunlevy's style of soccer is strictly cup tie football.

The remaining game saw a wonderful goal-scoring game at the Turtle Creek grounds of Westinghouse. The Pittsburgh Rovers forced Westinghouse into a playoff at Lawrence Park by holding them to a 4-4 tie.

If there was any doubt in the minds of soccerites regarding the ability of Heidelberg this season, it must have been thrown into the discard yesterday when the Green and Gold scoring machine swung into action. Pittsburgh has a stellar defense and this was punctured by Balsarni's cracks five successive times. Buff Donnelli will now be available for the club, which will be of real advantage.

Dunlevy was not extended much. This should give the boys a good workout for the Akron game scheduled for Charleroi tomorrow in the National.

Ken Strong Holds Scoring Lead In East

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Several Thanksgiving Day scoring splurges caused a big shake-up in the list of leading eastern football scorers yesterday.

Ken Strong scored seven points as his New York University team was losing to the Oregon Aggies and sent his total for the season to 161. Paul Scull, of Penn, scoring 31 points against Cornell, jumped into third place. Neal, of Western Maryland, scored 31 points against Muhlenberg, and Warren, of Davis-Elkins, went him one better with 32 against Salem.

The 10 leaders in the East follow:

BUC SIX PLAYS 1-1 TIE WITH CANADIENS

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Benny Leonard's persistent and pesky Pirates paid their first visit of the season to Montreal last night and played a one-goal draw with the Canadiens, the second tie game between the two teams in eight days, they having played a scoreless tie at Pittsburgh last Thursday.

The Canucks had an edge in the offensive play during the game, but a tenacious and close-checking Pirate defensive system backed by some good goal-tending by Joe Miller kept the Canadiens at bay. The Corsairs displayed nothing out of the ordinary in the attack, but bothered Hainsworth with their long shots by which route they got their goal in the first period. Holway, defense man, scored the Bucs' lone counter on a shot from Canadiens' blue line.

TIE SCORE

The second period was only 25 seconds old when Canadiens tied the score on an individual play by Aurel Joliat, peppery little left winger. Joliat shot once, but Miller blocked. The latter, however, in attempting to clear, batted the puck right back into Joliat's stick, and this time the local player made no mistake.

Less than four minutes after the start of the game the Corsairs had a one goal lead. Holway scored it when he drifted a long shot from the Canadien blue line which caught Hainsworth unawares. The lineup:

| PITTSBURGH—1. | | CANADIENS—1. |
|---|---|---|
| Miller | G. | Hainsworth |
| Holway | R. D. | Mantha |
| McCaffrey | L. D. | Burke |

DUKES CLINCH TIE FOR TITLE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Capt. Buff Donnelli led Elmer Layden's spectacular Dukes in a devastating raid on the Wolfpack of Waynesburg before 8,000 roaring fans, the largest throng ever gathered on the Bluff campus, in hectic Thanksgiving Day battle yesterday morning. The Hill-toppers had never previously registered a gridiron victory over the Orange of Greene county, but when they finally achieved long-standing ambition they did it properly and conclusively by the overwhelming margin of 35 to 6. The Red and Blue speedsters looked all of five touchdowns better than their gargantuan opponents in the holiday fracas — and furthermore they looked vastly better than they themselves had looked at any earlier stage of the campaign. The contest marked the first occasion upon which the Pittsburghers really chose to open up with the full fury and variety of their Layden-coached attack and the result, featuring truly brilliant running and passing advances, proved most delectable to the vast majority of the fans who jammed the bleachers about the uptown field.

Bootin' Buff himself attended personally to the tallying of 22 of his team's almost three dozen points. In period one he raced into the end zone to seize a short heave from Quarterback Joe McCarthy for the initial counter of the fray. In session two he knifed left tackle for 16 yards to hang up touchdown two just a few minutes ere Ganzy Benedict, his running-mate at halfback, struck off the opposite flank for 22 yards and the third marker. In frame three, Donnelli was back at it again and bored off left tackle from the Waynesburg 10-stripe to carry the giant Boyd, Yellowjacket line ace, the last six yards of the way to another Hill score. All four of these Bluff touchdowns were topped off by successful placement kicks from the toe of Donnelli. The final Duke clicker arrived near the close of hostilities, Bud Devinny, Rochester lad, tossing neatly across the line to Joe Tavelli, rangy secondary fullback of the Hillmen, to complete the deal. Devinny added the extra point by the placement route.

CLINCH DEADLOCK

By virtue of their triumph over the Wolfpack, the Laydenites not only boosted their win total for the season to eight out of nine starts, but also clinched claim to a deadlock with Westminster for the Tri-State Conference championship. Thus has Duquesne climaxed her greatest of grid years by annexing titular honors as well as compiling far and away the finest record she has ever boasted.

The entire Duke squad functioned well on the defense, a fact attested by Waynesburg's inability to garner a single first down by running the ball. Guerrier wound up his college career in a blaze of glory for the Bluffites—and similar tribute must be paid Dick Toline, genuinely great Yellowjacket end, who was half-carried from his last varsity battlefield after bearing back the ultimate kick-off in the dying moments of the encounter. The Duquesne line charged fiercely on the attack and ripped gaping holes that Bluff backs were not slow to take advantage of. The Waynesburg forwards were somewhat faulty on the offense and as a consequence, the Orange assault seldom penetrated for appreciable gains. Capt. Ford, Demoise, Boyd and Smith split Jacket stardom with Toline. The lineup.

Eastern State Grid Title to Gettysburg

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Gettysburg won the Eastern Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Conference title here yesterday afternoon by defeating Franklin and Marshall, 25 to 6, in the annual Thanksgiving Day battle.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Salem, Mass.—Eliezer Rioux defeated Cyclone Jack Humbeck, 10 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Mickey Diamond defeated Babe Herman, 8 rounds; Lew Lafferty defeated Wilbur Cohen, 10 rounds; Earl Mooney knocked out (technical) Pat McBride, 5 rounds.

At Indianapolis—Chuck Wiggins knocked out (technical) Tom Sayers, 6 rounds.

At Buffalo—Young Jack Thompson knocked out Sam Bruce, 10 rounds.

SCOTTDALE LOSES

Mount Pleasant High defeated Scottdale High at Scottdale, Thanksgiving Day, 13 to 0, in the final game of the season for the Scotties. The first downs were 11 to 8. Scottdale's aerial attack with Yellenosky featuring menaced Mount Pleasant's goal often, especially during the third quarter, when Scottdale failed to score within four yards of the goal.

EASY FOR HURST

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 30.—The powerful Hurst High School grid machine advanced another notch toward the Class B title in the W. P. I. A. L. yesterday by trouncing East Huntington Township's eleven, 64-0, on Hurst Field. Coach Pershing's lads scored two minutes after the kickoff.

Oregon Gridders Now Peaceful Sightseers

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Their pockets stuffed full of congratulatory wires from home, the Beavers of Oregon State College, were just ordinary, peaceful sightseers today.

At the Yankee Stadium yesterday, however, they were terrors of the gridiron, terrors that manhandled New York University's football team, setting it down with a 25-to-13 defeat that shocked the football world.

But Coach Paul J. Schissler, of the Beavers, wasn't surprised. "You had it in you all year, but you didn't get it out until today," the dapper little coach told his squad in the dressing room after the game.

HOPES BLASTED

good ones. The boys are sorry to see him go.

State scared the Panthers with a dangerous aerial attack, but until the final period, was unable to work the ball very deeply into Pitt's territory. In that quarter, Miller passed 20 yards to Kaplan, who was downed on the 22-yard line. Then on the next play, Uansa ended the threat by intercepting a heave on the 18.

Like Wash-Jeff, Syracuse and Nebraska, the Lions were unable to make a first down through the Pitt line. Great stuff.

The big disappointment of the day as far as I was concerned was the fact that I did not get to bend an elbow with Deutchland Uber Alles Herman, a famous Stater, who guides the destinies of the Lion yearling teams.

In the morning, Duquesne played havoc with Waynesburg. The Dukes opened up with most everything they had, and they had plenty. Three touchdowns in the first half put the game "in," and then, in the final two periods, two more tallies were recorded.

DONNELLI SHINES

Capt. Buff Donnelli was the star of the game, scoring three times. Dick Toline and Williams, the clever and veteran Yellow Jacket ends played hard but fruitlessly for the Jackets.

By virtue of the triumph, the Dukes reached the top of the Conference ladder, but imagine their embarrassment when they found Westminster already in possession of half the space at the top.

Wash-Jeff battled West Virginia long and hard, displayed true Wash-Jeff fight and took a 14-0 licking. The Mountaineers were keyed up for this game, and showed a remarkable recovery after the setback suffered at the hands of Georgetown 10 days or so ago.

Thiel, little old Thiel, with the brilliant Stan Berkman making his final appearance, held the powerful Grove City eleven in check and earned a 6-6 tie. It was another boost for the coaching ability of Dr. Tom Holleran.

Geneva, beaten by Temple, Westminster and Allegheny in succession came back manfully and defeated John Carroll University at Cleveland in a nip and tuck ball game, 19 to 12. The contest was the final one of the year for the Covenanters.

Bucknell secured partial revenge over Temple for the 19-12 setback suffered at the hands of the Philadelphians last season by playing the up and coming Easterners to a 7-7 tie at Lewisburg. The game closed the second successful season Carl Snavley and Ulhardt Hangartner have enjoyed at Lewisburg.

Any hope that little Salem college may have had of winning the West Virginia state title went floois as Davis-Elkins rode roughshod over the Methodists. The Senators, with three aces playing their final band, won a 63-0 victory.

Penn trampled all over Cornell in the annual classic at Philadelphia. Syracuse emerged from the ruck and beat Columbia and Brown triumphed over Colgate.

In the South, Georgia Tech celebrated the bid to the Tournament of Roses game by whipping poor Auburn 51-0.

STATE BATTLE

lineup, a loss which would tend to greatly weaken the Violets' line and enable an opponent to match its strength and thus prevent it from opening the gaping holes through which the mighty Ken Strong gallops to touchdowns?

It has been contended in many quarters that Grant, N. Y. U.'s other tackle, is a stronger player than Lassman, but the result of yesterday's game seems to belie this belief. With Lassman still flat on his back in Mercy Hospital here as a result of injuries suffered in the Tech game, and receiving such news from the Yankee Stadium as might be expected to precipitate a relapse for him, Grant playing with a substitute in Lassman's place, didn't fare so well. With all due respect to the play of the Aggies, there can be no doubt that Lassman's absence had its part in permitting those four touchdowns by the Coast players and in keeping Strong from getting away as he did against Tech here five days before when the Violets' line proved too experienced for the Tartans' forward wall.

ON GUARINO'S REMOVAL

Honey Guarino, the end, was one of the three regulars playing his last game for the Panthers yesterday. The two others were Capt. Fox and Mike Getto, who has been all-America stuff all season. Getto was injured running interference for Uansa on the latter's century dash and had to leave the game shortly afterward, bemoaning his luck. Fox played throughout the game and Guarino would have, too, but for an error by one of his teammates.

Pat Scanlon was the perpetrator of the excusable blunder. It also was Pat's last chance to play and he was aching to get in there. His opportunity finally came in the last quarter, when he was told to relieve Donchess at left end. Elated he dashed out on the field, and, recalling that he always played right end, he notified the referee he was substituting at that post. "Scanlon for Guarino," he chirped before he realized his mistake. But the deed was done and Guarino had to leave the game. That was why Honey came out sorer than a boiled owl—if you know how sore that is. I don't, but it is a good old standby expression.

TUFFY IN NEW YORK

Any time a young fighter comes along with the remarkable record of Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffiths, of Iowa, who makes his New York debut tonight against James J. Braddock in Madison Square Garden, he must have something. Here is a callow youth who has knocked both old Mike McTigue and Tony Marullo kicking in the first round, stopped tough Joe Anderson and Charley Belanger and stowed away other veterans with a punch. He looks like the sweetest socker since Jack Dempsey came out of the West a decade ago to scale the heights. In meeting Braddock he goes against a fine boxer with dynamite in his right fist. It should be a great fight.

IRISH GRIDDERS DUE ON COAST TONIGHT

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Notre Dame's rambling gridmen hung up their cleated training shoes after a fast signal drill yesterday, and declared themselves set and ready for the intersectional struggle at Los Angeles tomorrow with Southern California's unbeaten Trojans.

The ramblers will have had two days of relaxation and travel before encountering the strong Western squad. After the light practice session of yesterday morning, Knute Rockne's charges loafed in the stands of the stadium here to watch the football squads of the University of Arizona and Whittier College in Thanksgiving Day action. Early today the South Bend aggregation will pull out for the coast, arriving in Los Angeles in the evening.

Rockne commented upon the weather to the extent of saying that the warm sunshine under which the Hoosiers went through their limbering-up processes, had done much toward putting his men in good shape for the game.

OLYMPICS BEAT FIREMEN BY 16-6 SCORE

By TOM BIRKS.

One more team dropped out of the titular race for the independent gridiron title Turkey Day when the McKeesport Olympics defeated the East Pittsburgh Firemen at the Quarry grounds, 16 to 6. The great battle waged up the Allegheny River between Burns and McChesneytown saw the Big Reg machine from Latrobe hitting on all cylinders to defeat Burns by 7 to 0.

The local battle, at Leslie Park, between the Valley Tigers and the Eighth Ward Traders, found the championship going to the Strip by a 7-to-6 margin.

The undefeated New Kensington Olympics found their winning streak halted at Oakmont, Roger Patrizio's team holding the Aluminum boys, 7-7.

The Wilson Park battle found Pleasant Valley playing its only home game, swamping the Washington Leopards, 19 to 6. The crowds were not as large as had been expected.

The winning score of the Burns game came in the third period when McChesneytown marched the ball down the field on successive downs until Bill Johnson smashed the ball over. The extra point came when Clem Crowe took a forward pass over the goal line.

The game at East Pittsburgh found the Olympics in a good scoring mood. The Sullivan team scored six straight first downs after the opening kickoff and Goldberg went over on an off-tackle play. Hetler drop-kicked a goal in the second period. In the third quarter Newlin intercepted a forward pass to score the second touchdown, East Pittsburgh scoring in the final minutes. The lineup:

Lassman, N. Y. Captain, Follows Team by Wire

Al Lassman, injured New York University football captain, who has been confined in Mercy Hospital with a severe concussion of the brain since the New York U.-Carnegie Tech battle at Forbes Field last Saturday, "saw" his Violets go down to defeat before the Oregon Aggies yesterday through the medium of a special telegraph wire from the Polo Grounds in New York to his bedside here.

Al took the defeat of his team quietly, and sent a message of condolence to the squad and one of congratulation to Capt. Maple, of the Aggies, after the contest. The reports of the game were read to him as they came over the ticker by Assistant Manager Charles Vye, who has been attending the battered tackle since his injury.

Prior to the game, he received a cheering message from Barney Saltenstein, who took his place at left tackle in the lineup, and from Ellsworth Brown, chancellor of the university.

According to attending physicians, Lassman is improving steadily.

VIOLETS' DREAM SHATTERED BY OREGON

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—New York University's powerful Violet football machine was sadly manhandled by the unheralded Oregon Aggies at the Yankee Stadium here yesterday, and erased from further recognition as one of the nation's leading college elevens as the huskies from the Northwest won 25 to 13.

The game proved to be one of the biggest upsets of the year. New York, with its all-American backfield ace, Ken Strong, apparently in form, was the pre-game choice of the crowd of 40,000 who witnessed the battle, but after the Violets had tallied in the first period, when Strong raced 40 yards, tossed a 22-yard pass and then sent Follett scampering across for a touchdown, the Oregonians unleased such a powerful and driving attack that the Easterners were hopelessly outclassed.

With Capt. Maple, Sherwood and Hughes toting the ball, the Aggies scored 19 points in the second quarter, pounding the Violet line to shreds and by keeping the ball in their possession, held Strong at bay. Another touchdown was called back when an Oregon player was offside.

Sherwood tallied first for Oregon after a 47-yard march. Gilmore took the second score over after a drive of 70 yards and then Maple threw a pass to McKalip for the third.

Oregon made it 25-6 in the third period when Hughes drove through the line after Follett had fumbled a punt on his own 23. In a dying gesture, Mike Riordan and Strong combined to put over New York's second tally in the final period, Riordan ran 62 yards on an off-tackle sweep and Strong passed 22 yards to Nemeck. Then the big fellow plunged over from the 6 yard line for the tally.

Oregon tallied 21 first downs to eight for New York. The Violet line appeared to be handicapped by the absence of Capt. Al Lassman, who is still in a Pittsburgh hospital where he was taken after being severely injured in the game with Carnegie Tech last Saturday.

Sports Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

and 1932. If relations with Pitt are extended, as is probable, Notre Dame will also be on the local card for a game with the Panthers in 1934. In short it looks as if the appearance of Notre Dame in Pittsburgh will be a regular annual fixture starting next year.

THE fact that it had been expected did not make Pitt's smashing 26-to-0 victory over Penn State yesterday any the less creditable to the Panthers. There were times, particularly during the first half, when the Blue and Gold gridders appeared sluggish, but this may have been due to the prospect of success that was rendered practically certain by the very first play of the game when Toby Uansa made his great 100-yard run for a touchdown on the opening kickoff.

The Blue and Gold was good enough to win the annual Turkey Day fixture for the seventh straight time and that was all that was required. The powerful line maintained its remarkable defensive record—West Virginia, Syracuse, W. & J., Nebraska and Penn State combined made only one first down through it this year, that being scored by the Presidents against a substitute wall—and from an offensive viewpoint the smothering size of the score left not the slightest room for doubt as to the superiority of the Panthers. The outcome was a convincing final touch to a record that, despite the defeats suffered at the hands of West Virginia and Carnegie Tech, reflects a world of credit upon Coach Sutherland and entire Pitt team. The November Panthers had few equals anywhere.

CAPTAIN ALEC FOX has been playing great football all season, in addition to being the sparkplug of the fine Pitt line, but he outdid himself in the final game of his college career and gave a brilliant exhibition that clinched his right to be ranked with the greatest guards of the season. Mike Getto and Honey Guarino, the other Panthers who were in college competition for the last time, also ran true to their fine form of the past before they were taken out.

Steve Hamas

Penn State, too, had three men who were winding up their college careers—Acting Captain Steve Hamas, Alfred Wolff and George Delp. Like the retiring Panther trio, they gave a good account of themselves while in action. In fact, the entire Nittany team performed in creditable fashion under adverse circumstances, with Joe Miller, Wilkinsburg boy; John French, Herb Eschbach, Meyer Kaplan, John Zorella, Cal Shawley, Frank Diedrich, John McCracken and Turino Panaccion standing out. It requires no uncommon spirit to keep battling in the face of certain defeat against opponents who have previously beaten you six times in a row, but the Centre county lads displayed that kind of spirit in large quantities and were not disgraced in the final losing number of the leanest season they have experienced in many years.

UNQUESTIONABLY the greatest football season that Duquesne University has ever enjoyed was brought to a brilliant close by the Bluffites' sensational victory over Waynesburg College. The Dukes had never beaten Waynesburg, but when they finally accomplished the job they did it in most convincing fashion, as the score of 35 to 0 attests. As the closing feat in an impressive record of eight wins in nine contests, yesterday's success meant more than a mere final victory to Elmer Layden's gridders, for it enabled them to finish in a tie with Westminster for the championship of the Tri-State Conference. Few teams in the socalled minor college ranks of the country can look back on the 1928 season with as much justifiable pride as Duquesne.

IT REMAINED for the Oregon Aggies in yesterday's big East-West game at New York, to kick in with the most surprising upset of a season that had been replete with unlooked-for happenings.

Only last Saturday, New York University looked like the best team in the country in its triumph over Carnegie Tech, but yesterday the Violet stars, backed to win at almost prohibitive odds, despite the loss of Captain Al Lassman's services, were made to resemble second raters by an eleven that had been defeated by Southern California, Washington State and University of Oregon.

THOUGH James J. Braddock, Jersey City light heavyweight, attracted much attention recently by outpointing Pete Latzo and breaking the latter's jaw, he does not look formidable enough to keep Tuffy Griffiths from hanging up a victory when the Sioux City mauler makes his Eastern debut against Braddock tonight in a 10-round bout in New York.

Within three months, Griffiths has knocked out Del Fontaine, Mike McTigue, Tony Marullo, Joe Anderson and Jackie Williams—not a real championship feat, perhaps, but sufficient to make Tuffy look like a probable winner over Braddock. Tom McArdle, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, evidently holds the same view as to the outcome, as he has already matched Griffith to meet Leo Lomski next month, the winner of that meeting to be sent against Tommy Loughran for the 175-pound title.

James J. Braddock

WHILE on the subject of the Griffiths-Braddock fight, it isn't often that you hear of a boxing manager's insisting on lower ticket prices than the matchmaker or promoter plans to charge, but that's what happened in connection with tonight's show.

Joe Gould, manager of Braddock, would not sign for the match until Matchmaker McArdle who wanted to put on a seven-dollar top, consented to make the limit five dollars. Gould's argument was that the lower price would bring in more money than the higher top, basing his assertion on the sell-out at a five-dollar limit for the Gans-Glick bout in the same arena two weeks ago.

FAMOUS TRAINER IS WILLING TO HELP YOU

A Wonderful Offer for Folks With Different Kinds of Ailments

SMILING GENIUS TELLS HOW TO STOP YOUR ILLS

The writer of this is a newspaper man—one of the fans who prevailed on Mike Martin to make up a big batch of the magical stuff he uses on ball players in the big leagues, and distribute it to the public. Mike Martin, whose picture is shown on the right, is trainer of the Washington Baseball Team, and for years has studied the art of keeping men free of aches, pains, stiffness, rheumatism, swollen joints, crippled feet and ailments of all sorts which athletes are always having.

People have marveled at his wonderful ability to put men back in shape after injuries, and it is marvelous the way Walter Johnson's arm and others kept in trim under his care. The fact is the liniment Mike uses is so good the trainer of the Pittsburgh Pirates uses it, too, as do trainers and athletes all over the country.

Millionaire baseball fans have paid Mike Martin young fortunes to supply this liniment to relieve them of various aches, pains, rheumatic pains, etc., but Mike says any man's wife can rub it on as good as he, and now at last Mike has made up a huge batch—prepared a folder telling how to use it for various troubles—and local druggists have been supplied so anybody, no matter how poor, can take advantage of this man's wonderful experience, and for a few cents get a bottle of the same liniment they use at the ball park. It is made of the finest ingredients money can buy. It works quicker, surer and better than any liniment known. It's a safe bet. Ty Cobb, Herb Pennock, Lee Meadows, Ray Kremer, Walter Johnson, Coveleski, and others wouldn't risk using anything but the best on their arms. The writer urges that even if you have no use for it now—get a good sized bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment. The kids may get hurt; mother's back may hurt; dad's rheumatism return, or somebody has a bad chest cold. A bottle handy with Mike's directions is worth a fortune. It works like a charm on a stiff neck, sprained ankle, lame foot, swollen joint, etc., and though powerful it is so mild it will not blister, no matter how much you rub. It is a pleasant smelling, quick acting, up-to-the-minute remedy. Read what this smiling genius says in article on the right.

"I sincerely hope the public will take my word for it and try this liniment, and use it as I suggest in the folder with each bottle.

"Live-wire druggists here and in nearby towns have been supplied. If your druggist hasn't it, write me personally. I know from actual experience it will relieve the pain, swelling, ache, stiffness, etc., of every ailment described in the folder. If it fails for a single person I guarantee to reimburse them on request."

"So many people asked me to supply the public with the liniment we use at the ball park that I've finally made arrangements with a big concern to handle the details and have mixed up a huge batch. Newspaper men, friends and fans claimed thousands of people would be benefited and would appreciate the chance to buy at a reasonable price a bottle of this liniment, which heretofore I've only mixed up for my own use and for other trainers and athletes all over the country. There are a myriad details connected with labeling, bottling and putting it out among the druggists which I have turned over to a big concern. The folder with each bottle has been gotten up by a friend of mine, and in it I tell how I use the liniment on various ailments to get the best results.

"Twenty-five years experience tells me this liniment, if used right, will drive away any pain, ache, stiffness or soreness due to rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis, neuralgia, over-exercise or kindred causes. It relieves lame back, achy, lame feet, stiff neck, swollen joints, sprains and similar troubles. I believe it relieves a chest cold nicer and quicker than anything made, and so I guess it is no wonder big league stars and people who can't afford to be crippled or laid up for a single day with such troubles always use it. It will bring results hours and days sooner than weaker, old-fashioned remedies, and in lots of cases where old-time remedies failed. It is pleasant to use and never blisters no matter how much you rub it in, and can be depended upon as a sure, efficient and speedy remedy. I hope it helps every one who suffers—if it fails for a single person I will gladly reimburse them—but experience tells me if you use it you will be pleasantly surprised.

"Yours sincerely,

MIKE MARTIN."

Ambition, Right Kind and Wrong; How Chrysler Rose.

—By B. C. FORBES—

MORE men are ambitious to be somebody than to do something. They want the glory without the toil. They want the pay without paying the price.

The best brand of ambition concerns itself with doing, with achieving, with results rather than rewards.

Many a man, and many a business concern, will get farther by developing correct ideas on this subject.

HENRY FORD had the right ambition all the years he worked to produce his later-to-be-famous car. His main objective was to give the public individual transportation at the lowest possible cost. His method was not to figure out how high a price he could extract, but how far he could go in reducing the price below anything ever before known. Ford concentrated on accomplishing a useful job. He succeeded in doing this and the rewards took care of themselves.

A COMPANY doing a $75,000,000 business a year, Graybar Electric, has just been taken over entirely by its employes—incidentally, practically the entire 2,500 workers has subscribed for stock. At lunch this week President Albert L. Salt explained that it was the mission of this company to recover the country with distributing plants from which builders, contractors and other users of any and every conceivable line of electric goods could draw without a moment's notice, confident that the supplies would be on hand ready for instant delivery. He mentioned that one New York contractor doing a business of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 a year told him his inventory amounted to only $3,000.

"We undertake the job of carrying the inventory and of being always ready to deliver promptly any one of the many thousands of items we carry. We regard this as rendering a real service. The public are always willing to pay for such service. Therefore, we have felt justified in guaranteeing all our employes a minimum return of 6 per cent on their money."

PROFESSIONAL gentlemen used to be fond of declaring that they ranked higher than business people because, among other things, money-making was not the primary object of those engaged in the professions. They prided themselves, also, on their code of ethics, contrasting it with the horrible business dictum "business is business," implying that any means were justified to attain the one aim and end of business profits.

Well, the most enlightened of modern business leaders look upon business as a profession. Not only so, but they espouse the teaching of business at universities and colleges. They contend that business, properly conducted, is just as ethical as any "professional" work possibly could be. Business, they reason, is service. And they go on the principle that, if they can efficiently render truly worthwhile service, the financial rewards cannot well fail to prove satisfactory.

BUT do you not find many a young man who imagines that he is tremendously ambitious when all he wants is to land a big job at a big salary and to enjoy the glory thereof?

He doesn't realize that he is a swingorious species of ambition. To apply every ounce of his vitality to do the job in hand, however humble, better than anyone ever did it before would strike him as being commonplace, unworthy of his wonderful talents. He does not want to have to rise laboriously step by step through the sheer merit of his daily tasks. He yearns for some miracle to happen, for some fairy to wave a wand and land him gloriously at the top of the ladder. And, in time, when no miracle happens, he becomes sore, sour, rebellious.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER has lately come more prominently into the limelight than any other man in the motor world. His achievements have dazzled the country. I had a long talk with him the other day to find out how he has done it. I quizzed him very closely about his early jobs.

Of course, I discovered that he earned his advancement inch by inch, earned it by proving the most capable machinist's apprentice in the shop, by becoming a successful journeyman, by handling men effectively when a foreman, and, later, by going into debt to buy a $5,000 automobile 22 years ago in order to learn every nut and bolt in it so as to lay a solid foundation for his ambition to become a builder of motor cars eventually.

IF WE concentrate on doing something we need not fret and worry over our chance of becoming somebody.

CARNEGIE METALS OFF; SUBURBAN ELEC. FIRM

Trading was quiet and prices were irregular in the early session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. There was no reflection here of the buoyant opening on the New York market.

A few scattered trades in the miscellaneous industrial issues marked the first hour's business. Suburban Electric Development was in moderate demand and responded to the buying orders with a fractional rise. The heavy industrials were quiet, but quotations showed practically no change from those prevailing on the close Wednesday. Fuels were quiet at about the same levels marked up on the previous close.

Carnegie Metals met a moderate volume of selling in the first hour and slipped off easily as about 500 shares were unloaded. Metal and mining stocks were strong on the "big board." Anaconda established a new high on the opening and there was a firm market in other leading coppers.

Westinghouse Electric showed pronounced strength in the initial dealings in New York, but there was no trading in the stock here. Air Brake held steady in the face of the Interstate Commerce Commission decision not to compel further block signal installations at this time. Air Brake is one of the two leading factors in that industry through its subsidiary, the Union Switch and Signal Company. General Railway Signal Company is the other leader in the field. Air Brake's business is widely diversified and it has many other sources of income in addition to signal business. The car-retarder business is a case in point, and the company only recently received a $500,000 order for a retarder system in one of the Big Four yards. Vacuum brakes for automobiles is another important line of the company's manufacturing activities.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The raw sugar market was steady and unchanged early today at 3.96c for spots duty paid, with no sales reported.

Raw sugar futures opened unchanged 2 points lower under scattered liquidation and commission house selling, promoted by the disappointing showing of the London market, and the larger European beet sugar crop estimate. Offerings, however, were all absorbed and following the call a steadier tone developed. Prices rallied on covering and some new outside buying with the list at midday 1 point lower to 1 point net higher. A prominent European beet crop authority estimated the beet sugar crop in Europe at 8,097,000 metric tons, against 8,022,000 tons at the end of October and last year's final crop of 8,941,000.

The refined market was quiet, with prices 10 points higher at 5.25c for fine granulated.

RAILS INCREASE EQUIPMENT BUYING

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE railroads have started buying equipment in increased volume. Expenditures for cars and other facilities are greater than they have been for several months. There is a fair volume of future business in sight but the total is still far from satisfactory for the companies dependent on the carriers for their earnings.

The Pressed Steel Car Company has booked several large orders for cars during the past month. The more recent orders were for 500 tank cars for the North American Car Corporation and for 300 flat cars for the Chicago & Northwestern. Other smaller bookings have also been made which have added materially to the total number of cars to be built.

After a delay of two weeks the directors of Pressed Steel Car declared their regular preferred dividend. It is understood they were waiting for assurance that prospective orders would actually be received before forming their policy on dividends.

THE bookings just made came too late to have any effect on this year's earnings, but they will start the new year with a higher rate of operations than has been enjoyed for a long time.

Westinghouse Air Brake Company is also beginning to feel the results of greater liberality in railroad expenditures. Yesterday a $500,000 order for electro-pneumatic car retarders for the Sharonville, Ohio, yards of the Big Four Railway was booked.

The numerous installations of car retarder systems already in railroad classification yards have more than justified optimistic anticipations for better operations and savings in costs.

Car retarders are used in "hump backed" yards. These are on a grade. The cars are allowed to coast down the grade, unattached to a locomotive, and the momentum secured is sufficient to allow the cars to roll to the desired track. This permits the making up of trains with very little switching by locomotives. The car retarders permit the regulation of the speed of the cars by a man in a controlling tower who also operates the switches. The retarders eliminate damage to equipment and lading due to excessive speed and reduce the number of men needed for switching.

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE has felt a general improvement in the volume of its sales. Most of these orders will not be filled until next year but there has been some betterment in current earnings. Results for the year are expected to show dividends of $2 a share on the stock earned by some margin. In the first nine months of this year $1.46 a share was earned.

A fairly easy money market is indicated for the latter part of this year by a study of the position of banks made by the Wall Street Journal. On November 14 leading banks were borrowing from the Federal Reserve banks only $641,240,000, the smallest amount since May 16. On July 3 these banks were borrowing $959,673,000, consequently there has been a reduction of $318,433,000, or 33 per cent in 19 weeks. Practically all the reduction in obligations to regional banks has come from the big banks as may be seen from the fact that in the 19-week period 631 banks have reduced borrowing from federal banks $318,433,000 while other banks have reduced only $15,138,000.

Last year, from July 6 to November 16, the combined reserve ratio dropped six points; this year for the corresponding period the ratio has increased two points. Last year the financial position was growing weaker; this year it is growing stronger. A year ago we were exporting gold; now we are importing it.

These figures, all taken from official sources, show that our financial position is unquestionably growing stronger. And if credits follow a normal course after the first of the year there will be a further material reduction of credit during January and February.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Easing down of grain values were general today largely as a result of weakness of foreign markets, especially the wheat market in Liverpool. Much of the trading here consisted of shifting of ownership between holders of December and May deliveries. One of the leading bearish factors was rain in Southern Argentina, where dry weather and heat has been excessive, but there were also fears expressed that wheat harvesting in Northern Argentina might be delayed to some extent. Corn prices were responsive to predictions of clear skies.

Wheat closed unsettled ⅜@⅝ to ⅞c net lower, corn ⅛ to ⅜@½c down, oats unchanged to ⅛c off, and provisions, varying from 17c setback to a rise of 5c.

News today that asking prices for Argentine wheat abroad had been sharply reduced was accompanied by word that shipments from Argentina to Europe had increased, especially wheat destined to Great Britain. Australian wheat shipments were also larger, additional moisture was reported in the drought district of Argentina, and India sent word of good rains, assuring successful completion of sowing.

Highly beneficial effects to United States winter wheat were looked for from snows that in parts of the belt were reported today as more than a foot in depth. On the other hand only a moderate export business in wheat from North America was said to have been transacted over the holiday.

STOCKS CRASH WHEN MONEY RATE SOARS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A sweeping reaction in stock prices, inspired by the marking up of call money rates from 8 to 10 per cent and a wide open break in Canadian Marconi on the New York curb market took place this afternoon after a wild outburst of bullish enthusiasm at the opening of the New York Stock Exchange had carried several issues up 5 to nearly 15 points. Early gains quickly melted away under the flood of selling orders, and several of the high-priced specialties dipped 5 to nearly 20 points below Wednesday's final quotations.

The rise in call money followed the calling of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in bank loans, presumably to meet the unusually heavy month-end disbursements. Call money has not been as high as 10 per cent since October 1 when a similar month-end "squeeze" took place, and while the high rate is regarded as temporary, bankers look for relatively firm rates until after the end of the year.

The break in Canadian Marconi was attributed to the statement of Sir Joseph Flavelle, president of the company, that the stock was too high. It has been estimated that 1928 earnings will be only about 2 cents a share so that the stock has been selling at 1,400 times its earnings. It was a similar break in Bancitaly stock that started the drastic reaction in prices last June.

Radio broke from an early high of 392 to 374, Wright Aeronautical dropped 10 points and Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, Canadian Pacific, International Nickel and Yellow Truck fell 4 to 7 points below Wednesday's final quotations, selling of the last named being inspired by an official denial of rumor that the General Motors truck business would be taken over by the Yellow company. Midland Steel preferred broke 18½ points to 265¼.

In the early outburst of buying Rossia Insurance ran up 14½ points to 278, Packard Motors 12¾ to 143, New York Central 9 to 196¾ and Consolidated Gas 5¾ to 113, all new high records.

Ten per cent call money attracted a fresh inflow of funds into the market in midafternoon, but there was a good demand for funds at that figure.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5 to 10 points in response to over holiday steadiness at Liverpool and continued favorable reports from the textile trade. December contracts sold up to 20.92c and May to 20.70c on the initial demand, which included trade calling in near months as well as covering or rebuying by recent sellers and a moderate commission house demand. This advance met considerable realizing and southern selling, however, and the market eased back to nearly Wednesday's closing quotations by the end of the first half hour. Trading was only moderately active. Private cables said that trade buying and covering had absorbed liquidation in Liverpool and that there was a fair inquiry from South America and the continent for cotton cloths.

The decline from the opening advance extended to 20.65c for December and 20.49c for May late in the morning, or about 11 to 14 points net lower. Not much Southern selling was reported after the first half hour, but there was further profit-taking from local or Wall street sources and the buying appeared to be largely on the declines or on scale down orders. At midday the market was quiet and about 6 to 12 points net lower.

Fear, Hate, Envy Conquer Greed, Power, Vanity in End Says Fay King

By FAY KING

GREED, power and vanity have been the undoing and death of countless men throughout the ages.

Greed spurs such men on to accumulate wealth through doubtful channels.

Power makes them drive hard bargains, the real interest on which is hate.

Vanity leads them to defy danger.

Vanity, too, more than loyalty to any codes, seals their lips. Such men are vain and jealous of their power to the last breath.

To name that one at whose hand such a man meets his final defeat would be to confer a distinction he begrudges.

Better to have the humbler, happier place in life than to flourish briefly among those who fear, hate and envy you!

Once Sentenced To Die, Woman Gets Fortune

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A Paris dispatch to the Evening Star says that Mrs. Florence Maybrick, once sentenced to die as her husband's slayer, has fallen heir to a fortune of approximately $750,000 under the will of Walter Thomas Burrell, a British subject who lived in France.

Mrs. Maybrick was sentenced to death in 1889, but the sentence was commuted. She was released in 1905.

The dispatch said that Mrs. Maybrick was now living in Florida and intended to utilize some of the money in investigations to prove her innocence of the charge of poisoning her husband.

NEW PILE REMEDY STOPS ALL PAINS

Relieves Piles Without Aid Of Operation Or Ointments.

DISCOVERY MAKES CHEMIST FORTUNE

In explaining how he came to discover the remarkable new internal remedy for various kinds of Piles and Hemorrhoids, which druggists are featuring, and both doctors and patients are acclaiming here, the now famous chemist said:

"I figured if I could find a substance that was impervious to gastric juices I could make a harmless pill of various herbs, etc., that would pass right through the stomach and then dissolve into a healing, soothing, curative liquid when it reached the bowels—thereby arriving at the seat of all the trouble in full strength—quickly stop all pain, burning and itching—and aid nature to completely eliminate the cause and bring permanent lasting relief. How well I finally succeeded is best told by the thousands of tests, proving beyond a shadow of doubt that at last, no matter how long or severely one has suffered, they can forget ugly operations, except in rare instances, and without nasty salves or suppositories, enjoy the benefits of this simple, harmless, scientific method."

Even delicate old men and women troubled with piles, sit, walk and sleep in comfort free of pain in a few hours in many cases, and report complete relief in a few days. Colac Pile Pills are made in the world's largest laboratory of finest ingredients. Just a couple pills internally with a swallow of water at meal time for a few days. Several local druggists agree to refund the 75 cents a regular bottle costs if they fail to relieve completely, even the worst or chronic case. Certainly no one should neglect themselves another day. If your own druggist hasn't Colac Pile Pills, send 75c to Colac Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md., with name and address for full size bottle, 40 pills, plain wrapper, full directions, return mail.

Georgia Tech Star In Hospital With Flu

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Warner Mizell, Georgia Tech's candidate for all America honors, lay in a hospital today suffering from influenza.

The clever but unobstrusive halfback of the Tornado, was stricken early this week, and collapsed late yesterday on the side lines at the Tech Auburn game, which Tech won 51 to 0.

His uncle, Dr. George Mizell last night announced he would not permit Mizell to enter the Tech-Georgia game here on December 8, for fear the excitement might bring about a relapse that would keep him out of the Tech-California game in Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Two Measures That Demand Prompt, Favorable Action By Senate Are Boulder Dam and Naval Replacement

Over and above the annual appropriation bills t must be enacted at every regular session for the port of the government, two legislative proposals paramount importance to the nation will demand doubtless get the approval of Congress at the rt session which starts next week and ends next rch.

Both of these outstanding measures passed the se at the last session. Both command the sup- t of a majority of the members of the Senate. h are backed by the unconditional indorsement of sident Coolidge and President-elect Hoover.

First on the Senate calendar is the Swing-John- bill providing for the completion, without the ulti- e cost of one dollar to the government, of the lder Dam project.

Next on the Senate calendar is the naval replace- ment bill providing for the construction of fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers and an aircraft carrier to take the place of ships long since obsolete.

Because it is both a life-saver and a home-builder, the Boulder Dam project appeals alike to the humanity, imagination and common sense of all Americans of national understanding and sympathy north and east, south and west.

Completion of the Boulder Dam project will protect from destruction by flood disaster along the Colorado River, the lives of more than 65,000 men, women and children living in the Imperial Valley of California and in Southern Arizona, and their property which already exceeds in value one hundred millions of dollars.

Completion of the Boulder Dam project will also provide new sites for home-builders by the irrigation and reclamation of many thousands of acres of land now arid and going to waste.

Completion of the Boulder Dam project will solve a troublesome international problem by the building of an all-American canal that will carry the water of the third largest river in the United States to citizens of this country who live within the boundaries of this country and will, therefore, no longer be dependent upon a foreign government for their protection.

Completion of the Boulder Dam project will provide water in abundance for the cities of Southern California than which there is no faster growing region between the two oceans.

And last, but not least, completion of the Boulder Dam project by the generation of electric power will furnish the means for the payment of the whole project—dam, canal and all—without the ultimate cost of the federal government of a single dollar of the peoples' money.

With the Boulder Dam project provided for by law, the Senate should then give its attention to the urgent needs of our Navy. These have been too long neglected.

No question of nav al competition with any nation is involved in this naval replacement program. As President Coolidge said in his memorable Armistice Day address to the American Legion, "World standards of defense require us to have more cruisers." They also require us to have more aircraft carriers, more aircraft, more submarines and most of all, more trained personnel to man them.

Whatever Congress does or leaves undone at the short session which starts next week, the people of the United States, without regard to party or to section, have a right to demand that their public servants in the Senate send the Boulder Dam bill and the naval replacement bill to the President for his signature, just as soon as they can be put upon their passage after debate, in good faith, has been ended.

Both the Boulder Dam project and the naval replacement program are based upon the sound theory set forth in the old saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Santa Claus Appeals To You to Shop Early

With the passing of Thanksgiving, Santa Claus becomes insistent that you pay him a little more attention. He been making himself heard, it is true, but the November lay must pass before the jolly saint can get the ears of people and he knows it. He now asks that all sit up and heed to his message—"Shop early."

rung into their Yuletide stride. Holiday re of those who pass the show windows, y are but a promise of the wonders of the interiors, which lay the products of the entire world, amazing argosies near and far—bringing the colors of the Orient and the osphere of the boulevards of European capitals, as well as cornucopia overflowing with the product of our own art- and artisans. What a fairyland a store is at the Christmas on! What a stimulus to memories of youth and the spirit heer and good-will!

But it is an ever-changing picture. Now it has for you what appeals most. As the kaleidoscope shifts, the suc- ling scene may be disappointing to you. That article you see in the window may be unobtainable a week hence— e days hence—perhaps tomorrow. Those who make their ctions now are secure. They will have completed a serious k—for Christmas shopping is a serious work even though nded by the supporting element of generous feeling. To p early in the season is to insure a complete field of selec- . To shop early in the day is to secure immunity from the wding of later hours.

If you are at all sentimental you get the biggest thrill of from Christmas shopping. This for mother, that for father, ething else for brother and sister, a remembrance for a nd, a gift for a dear, sweet grandmother, all little tokens ove and affection to which imagination affixes a sprinkling tardust and the scent of roses that bloomed in the garden yesterday. If you are at all sentimental old friends troop ou as you enter a store at this season—Alice, as fresh from nderland as the day Lewis Carroll first introduced her to among others. And she leads you back to Christmas nings. To Christmas mornings with children happy around astoundingly prolific tree and parents in the background wing in the warmth of a picture that is the finest in the ld.

It is a picture with a fullness that cannot escape you if shop early.

Police Routine Turns Up Real De Maupassant Tale

A house is looted by thieves. Among articles taken is a tle of perfume. Patrolman J. L. Shaw, of the Woods Run ice Station, smells the scent on a dress in the house that has n robbed. Later he smells a sweet odor he recognizes as same in another house. Arrests of four persons are made, for theft, two for receiving stolen goods.

A Guy Du Maupassant story in real life. If the French ion wizard had woven the tale he would have added only a antic reason as the motive for the robbery, and the reader uld be charmed by the fancy, feeling that it all was the igery of a fertile brain, unlikely to occur in the ordinary lks of life. Yet there it is. Use your imagination to supply romance, tincturing it with a little bitterness and cynicism, you have your own De Maupassant tale to order.

And this is not unusual among the news stories of the day, e equal of fiction is found in news columns every day if you e the imagination to supply the deficient atmosphere and ail.

Patrolman Shaw is a man with a good nose and he has de good use of it.

ONCE OVERS

—By J. J. Mundy—

RE you trying to copy some other person? He or she is popular and you think you might gain the some popularity if you were able to del yourself after the same pattern.

Perhaps this person produces something that brings in a good income. You resolve that the income might as well be yours since you believe t you could do his job as well as he does it.

Perhaps you might turn the trick after his style.

But if he is unusually proficient and what he produces is original, the nces are that you cannot compete with him very long.

You think he earns his money easily.

This may be true, for the things that are well done are apparently e with ease.

But do you know how many years of experience and preparation that son has served to be able to do easily what he now draws an income ?

You have not the same talent, your mind does not travel in the line does.

As you have not given thought to that particular kind of effort it might e harder than you think, to copy satisfactorily.

Do something in an original way—that is what counts.

Tales That Are Told

She Was Lucky

BREATHLESSLY she hurried into the police station.

"Inspector!" she cried anxiously.

The busy man looked up from his writing.

"Madam," he said suavely, "pray take a seat until you recover yourself."

"But, inspector," implored the woman, "I urge you! It's most important! My husband has disappeared—vanished! He just walked out and hasn't come back. Here's his photo, and now please find him, inspector—please!"

The man behind the desk studied the portrait in silence. Then he looked up at the woman.

"Why?" he asked.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

YOU'D be surprised how much some of these old codgers can stand. I've heard of men past 80, sound all over and strong, getting run over by automobiles and never noticing it much. But the best one I know is about an old trapper out in Oregon that was looking after his traps, trying to get enough good skins to buy himself a good present for his ninetieth birthday. One of these fast-driving eastern tourists was scooting down the highway just as the old fellow crossed, and the car hit the trapper.

The old man was knocked down, but the driver of the car got so excited when he thought he'd killed somebody that he skidded clean off the highway, and the car turned over twice and landed in the ditch.

The old trapper came over to the wreck of the car and started to lift it off the driver.

"I'm right sorry," says the old man. "I never intended to kick the car so hard, but Ma always has told me I never knew my strength and I'd hurt somebody yet. Y'see I got kinda mad when you ran against me with this here contraption, but I wouldn'ta kicked you out in the ditch this way for any money if I hadn'ta lost my temper."

LISTEN, WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson—

A LETTER signed Disillusioned lies on my desk.

Four years ago the girl who wrote it was a radiant young dreamer. She lived with her family in a small country town and life was gentle and merry and reasonable. Everything went as everything should go—as mother and father and the old minister and her school teachers had told her everything would go. Then, quite suddenly she was thrown out of that peaceful setting and forced to earn her living in a big city.

For four years she has faced life as it really is and the sight has numbed and embittered her. None of the old rules, to which she pinned her faith, have worked. On every side she sees the wicked flourishing and the righteous being forced to the wall. Often, I suspect, she has tried to ask God about it as she used to ask Him about things back in that little country town. But there seems to be no God above the hard, city roofs, and she is quite desperate.

"Life isn't worth living," she cries, in the simple tragic words which sad souls have used so often.

Joseph Wood Krutch wrote an answer to that wail in his article, "The Tragic Fallacy" in the November "Atlantic Monthly."

"Perhaps," says he, "it would be pleasanter if men could believe what the child is taught—but the good are happy and that things turn out as they should—but it is far more important to believe, as Shakespeare did that however much things in the outward world may go awry man has, nevertheless, splendors of his own, and that, in short, Love and Honor and Glory are not words but realities."

Those are great words. They should bring healing and fresh strength to many a hurt heart.

Do not test life by the disorder which you see about you. It is not possible for a world in which there is so much growth and conflict to be orderly. The old, beautiful promises and plans rarely work in such confusion. But that does not prove that they are false. They may not work in the world, but they work, nevertheless. They work in the hearts of men.

"Love and honor and glory" do exist, even though they may seem lost to our impatient sight. They exist where they started—in the human spirit. We are not yet strong or wise enough to transmit our dreams into action—but the dreams are there, nevertheless and they are more real than all our blundering.

I cannot explain why the dreams are there. I do not know why man, this higher ape, should hold a dream beneath his sickly, hairy hide. I cannot explain it biologically or psychologically. I only know the dream is there and that its loveliness endures even in the most shameful lives.

Do not search through the muck heaps for food for your faith. Rather stoop low and enter the secret door that opens into the human heart. There you will find that which will feed your soul.

Bible Passages

Noah Leaves the Ark

(Genesis 8; 15-22)

AND God spake unto Noah, saying,

Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee.

Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him:

Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth, after their kinds, went forth out of the ark.

And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord; and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar.

And the Lord smelled a sweet savour; and the Lord said in his heart, I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done.

While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Thoughts while strolling: Curb loafers who take sailor tugs at their waistbands, deep drags at cigarets and await the "breaks." Mrs. Park Benjamin, the society lady, who "exposed" the night clubs. Those nut brown maids with pasted-on eyelashes. Eddie Peabody, another west coast jazz king.

John D., Jr., taking his daily quantum—care for quantum?—of sunshine. "Absinthe green" seems the rage color. Frederick Irving Anderson, the writer. The flood of baby blue roadsters. Whatever became of the Vassar Daisy chain? Hats that stress coyness. Bob Davis and his camera. Laurence Cassidy, the lawyer.

A sale of orchid suspenders. Yoo hoo! The gown shop of Natacha Rambova, Valentino's widow, on West Fifty-fifth street. A window display of iceless cocktail shakers—they use chemicals. Something arty about a smock, no matter who wears it. Harold Ross, an Aspen (Col.) boy, who made good in the city.

Lanky, long-hipped girls with long strides and open-mouthed adenoidal expressions. The only Rolls-Royce taxi in town—in front of the Plaza. The black-mustached boys with rakish side dips to their hats and shawl-like mufflers. Harrison Fisher's snow-white hair. And youthful swing.

The wave of cussing dramas. All packed. Willard Mack who seems to write a play a day. And gets them produced, too. Cossack doormen. Hotels that feature Pompeiian pools and "personal masseurs." Italian cafes run by "retired opera singers." Who still try to crack a high C for the trade.

The honk of Central Park geese. A sale of long-legged Paris dolls like suckers buy in gyp cafes. That layer of sad grayness that comes before dusk. And the chill that blows up from the harbor. Those ladies with modulated voices who carry away all the cash at bridge.

Rouge-dabbing and mirror-peeking flappers who wait in movie entrances for boy friends. The burly Broadwayite with a fog horn voice who designs gowns. Will Edrington, who built Earl Carroll's theater. New York blossoms into night, light by light. A salvation band sounds the Angelus.

Montreal, a sleeper jump from Forty-second street, increases in popularity as a week-end playground. Many journey by motor, but every train is also packed. Montreal has everything to produce the polliwoggles, but the appeal is not so much in its liquor as its quaint foreign atmosphere. There are sections where French alone is spoken and other sections featuring the Scotch burr and broad "a" of Picadilly. The city has more than a million population and 750,000 are French. Several tony hotels have recently opened, and Xmas reservations are said to be just dandy.

MARY'S MUMPS

—By Herbert Kaufman—

THE playgoer who gawks and snickers at the lewd episodes and spotlighted profanity, offered as substitutes for dialogue and drama, would call the police if his folk were exposed to identical remarks and situations in real life.

Obscenity and billingsgate have no more license on the stage than on the corner.

We don't "have to know about it."

Civilization means little, if it doesn't express a successful struggle with repulsiveness.

Granted that sewage must exist, its place is under ground or in covered cesspools.

Smut is an unnecessary pigment in art. And realism needs the services of a psychiatrist when its fancy hungers for offal.

Aberrations and other moral ulcers have a definite treatment ground—in the clinic and the sanitarium.

The Muses are not cowed or intimidated when decency protests against greater license behind the footlights, than its statutes and instincts tolerate in the street.

Remaks a host would resent at his table, are just as unfit for family ears anywhere else.

When humor seeks inspiration in the smoking room, and theaters become touts for seduction and adultery, it's high time to search national conscience for remedial attitudes.

A Western exchange recites the arrest of a woman who deliberately took her baby into a house quarantined for mumps.

She justified her action by explaining that her own mother had sent her around to catch measles and chicken-pox.

"She told me I was bound to get 'em anyhow—so the sooner the better."

Children are safe from nasty diseases, if kept clean and away from sources of infection.

The community mind deserves as much protection as its body.

Assumptions that every boy and girl will somehow encounter all the phases and phrases now peddled by leer mongers, affront commonsense and viciously slander our social system.

Mary doesn't have to get the mumps.

Carl Akeley

—By Garrett P. Serviss—

WHY go so far for our heroes—so far from the earth of our own home people? One of the noblest of stories is that of the New York state farmer boy who became Carl Akeley, the famous African explorer. Born on a farm—ah, yes, how often have the green fields been the nursery of America's best!

"O fortunatos nimium sua si bona norint, Agricolas!"

(O happy tillers of the soil, if they but knew their good fortune)!

When calm, home-loving temperament they are happy in their daily life with nature; when from them spring the seeds of genius they are happy in the stimulus of their environment, making their gifted sons both physically and mentally vigorous and enduring.

Carl Akeley died two years ago on the slopes of Mount Mikeno in the Belgian Congo, where he and his wife had been engaged since 1921 in scientific study of that strange and formidable anthropoid, the gorilla, amidst its native haunts, and in surveying the Albert National Park, which surrounds the region. He was buried, like a warrior, where he fell. High on the shoulder of that same mount he lies. Where can you find a more nobly pathetic scene than that described in these words from Science:

"Mrs. Akeley, aided by the other members of the expedition and her black boys, prepared his grave in the solid volcanic rock and, using the only available materials, built a coffin of native mahogany, metal-lined, and upholstered with soft woolen blankets. An eight-foot stockade of mahogany posts was erected around the burial plot to prevent the encroachment of the jungle. A great slab made of cement, which Mrs. Akeley caused to be brought from a government post a hundred miless distant, bears the explorer's name and the date of his death."

The reader will here perceive looming through the story, another heroic figure—that of the wife, who having shared in all her husband's labors and dangers, thus cared for him dead. And she remained there, during seven weeks, in a camp by her husband's grave, at an altitude of 12,500 feet, on the mountain of the gorillas, laboring to complete the survey of the park and to continue the study of those animals.
